'Last Chance' For Canada To Keep Quebec

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—Premier Lesage says Canada has reached its "hour of last chance" to keep the French-speaking province of Quebec within Confederation.

Lesage, in a speech to the legislative assembly, called for a royal commission of inquiry into the whole problem of biculturalism in Canada and said that the British North America Act would have to be "rethought and rebuilt."

The premier, in his first major address on the "two Canadas" debate which has been raging for months, expressed confidence that Confederation would survive provided the royal commission brought home to the rest of the nation Quebec's "legitimate rights and legitimate aspirations."

NOT MUCH SUPPORT

"As the leader of the opposition (Daniel Johnson) pointed out, we are on the eve of celebrating the centenary of Confederation," Lesage said. "If we are to judge Confederation as it is practiced today in Canada, there will perhaps be not too much enthusiasm in Quebec, unless there is a change of direction."

Strange, Savage War

A dramatic series of stories on "the forgotten war" being fought against communism in Southeast Asia begins unfolding in The Daily Colonist Sunday morning. It is a gripping correspondence by Prior Worthington of The Telegram News Service tells about the strange, savage war in South Vietnam against a deadly enemy who kills by stealth and surprise and then melts into the jungles and paddies.

Envoy Recalled

Tunisia Algeria At Odds

TUNIS (UPI)—President Habib Bourguiba Friday called back his ambassador from Algeria and buried insults at Algerian Premier Ahmed Ben Bella.

In what appeared to be the start of a new crisis in turbulent North Africa, the Tunisian leader charged Algeria with helping to foment a recent plot against his life.

NO BREAK

Thus far, no break-off of diplomatic relations has been announced but negotiations in Algiers on the traffic of persons and goods across the frontier were halted.

In Tunis, Bourguiba implied in a public speech that Ben Bella was involved in anti-Tunisian activity, adding "but Ben Bella should not be confused with the rest of Algerians who are our brothers."

Law Due Soon Grants Pledged

By IAN STREET

Legislation to give Victoria College full university status will be introduced at the next session of the B.C. House which opens Thursday, Premier Bennett indicated yesterday.

The premier told guests attending the formal opening of the first new building on the Gordon Head campus it was time the province had two universities, "each with a personality of its own."

He stressed, however, the attending need for continued co-operation between UBC and the fledgling Victoria University, adding "competition should exist in seeking higher standards, not between faculties."

'Surprise' Grants

Premier Bennett also disclosed that for the first time Victoria University this year will receive a capital grant in addition to the annual matching grant of $500,000. He did not say how much.

The premier's announcements came as a surprise, particularly in view of the imminence of next week's Throne Speech.

He informed reporters after the ceremonies it was hoped "with co-operation" of every

Clearihue Hopes

Judge Clearihue, chairman of Victoria College Council for 17 years and leader of the fight for an independent degree-granting university, earlier accepted a silver key to the classroom block that bears his name.

"It is my only hope that this building very soon will become part of the University of Victoria," he said.

As the audience applauded the end of the premier's speech

Space Bugs May 'Kill' Earth

Deadly Round Trip?

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A scientist warned yesterday that it is conceivable that microscopic life forms from another planet could cling to returning spacecraft and destroy life on Earth.

Dr. Solomon Golomb of California Institute of Technology said a life form inadvertently imported to Earth might have the capability of successfully competing with Earth life forms for the basic raw materials of life.

"There's been a great deal of thought given to preventing contamination of the moon and planets during visits by Earth space vehicles, but an even greater problem entirely overlooked is what about microscopic organisms carried to the Earth on return flights."

Golomb, who spoke at the closing day session of the ninth annual American Astronautical Society, said there is little reason to believe that alien life forms would be more efficient than Earth forms in the struggle for survival, but that it is a potential danger that must be recognized.

Dr. Fred Whipple, vice-president of the society and director of Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, voiced a grim possibility that a meteoroid colliding with Earth could trigger a nuclear war.

"There is no way I know of tracking a meteor," he said. "There is no advance notice of one crashing to earth. No one knows when the next one will hit."

10-Day Reprieve Won for Britain

BRUSSELS (Reuters)—Diplomatic efforts to save negotiations on British membership in the European Common Market Friday won a 10-day breathing space.

After a day during which France's demand for an immediate suspension of the talks was opposed by its five market partners, a ministerial session of the Six decided to take up the issue again Jan. 26.

It was expected but not decided that the British would meet again with the Six immediately after that.

REAL PRESSURE

The day also produced the first outward signs of real pressure by West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg to back up their desire for full British membership and get Paris to reverse its "thumbs down" policy on this.

West German sources said Dutch Foreign Minister Joseph Luns told the French that, if negotiations with Britain were broken off, he could not guarantee that the Dutch Parliament would ratify the agreement associating France's former territory of Algeria with the market.

WANT BRITAIN

The sources added that the same held true for West Germany.

British chief negotiator Edward Heath said before leaving for London that the five-day session just ended had shown how strongly the Five wanted Britain to join the Market.

No Soft Line

Communist Chinese delegate Wu Hsiuehuan yesterday rejected Soviet Premier Khrushchev's "soft line" Communism plea in Berlin and issued a declaration of independence within the Communist world. Peking Radio later broadcast his speech in Japanese and English.

Ferries Lost

Seas Take 200

HONG KONG (AP)—More than 200 people drowned in two Asian ferry disasters Friday.

The tourist ferry Djandji Radja (King's Promise) burst into flames and sank in North Sumatra's Toba Lake, killing from 105 to 125 persons, mostly women and children. The fire broke out in the engine room and touched off a fuel tank.

Earlier, the 34-ton coastal ferry Yun-ho capsized in a gale off Korea's southwest coast. Of the 100 people aboard, only a 24-year-old male passenger survived.

U.K. in Market —After de Gaulle

PARIS (Reuters)—President de Gaulle has told a group of French parliamentarians Britain will join the Common Market eventually—but that by that time he probably will no longer be in power, Le Monde says.

The newspaper quotes de Gaulle as saying: "Either the English will sign or they will leave Brussels. Then they will think it over. They will enter the Common Market one day but no doubt I will no longer be there."

John D Rejects Idea of Break

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker yesterday flatly rejected suggestions that Quebec might break away from Canada unless immediate action is taken to meet current French-Canadian grievances.

At the same time, he pledged an all-out effort by his Conservative government to strengthen the nation's "heart strings" through federal-provincial co-operation.

NOT DISINTEGRATING

"The idea that Canada is about to disintegrate has no place in my thinking or my associates' in the cabinet today," he said. "I'm not a defeatist; I don't preach the doctrine that our races can't get together."

"I say there cannot be domination by nine provinces over one—there can only be equal

Young-Tory Majority Calls for A-Weapons

OTTAWA (UPI)—A resolution approving nuclear warheads for Canadian forces at home and overseas was passed Friday by the Young Progressive Conservative Association of Canada.

The vote was 36 to 23 and came at the end of an exhaustive three-hour debate punctuated with flashes of anger and, in one case, near-tears. Anti-nuclear delegates from Ontario tried desperately to win approval for repeated amendments which would have watered down the resolution's unqualified approval of nuclear capabilities for all Canadian forces.

From the start, the debate shaped up as a near-even fight between Alberta, in favor of nuclear arms, and Ontario, against them.

'Pro' on Pledges 'Anti' on Weapons

WINNPEG (UPI)—Liberal leader Lester Pearson—in a telephone interview with a Winnipeg newspaper yesterday—said his party did not really want Canada to acquire nuclear weapons.

Mr. Pearson said that because the government had committed Canada to a nuclear role in NATO and NORAD, a Liberal government would honor these commitments. However, he said that after honoring such commitments, a Liberal government would seek to change them.

Mr. Pearson said the Liberal party did not want Canada to join the nuclear club and, if elected, would attempt to renegotiate this country's commitments so that nuclear weapons would not be used by Canadians.

See other Conservative Association stories, Page 3.

years had taken several steps to strengthen national unity, including installation of simultaneous translation in the House of Commons, passage of a Canadian Bill of Rights and a consistent, if yet unsuccessful, effort to "repatriate" the Canadian constitution.

The next move, he said, was a federal-provincial conference to reconsider the constitutional issue as well as creation of an official Canadian flag and national anthem.

"You can't do these things by law or compulsion," Diefenbaker said. "They can only be done through co-operation and that is what we intend to do."

Diefenbaker rejected suggestions that a royal commission should be appointed to consider the broad field of national unity and bilingualism.

anded the system of provincial grants matching public contributions up to $300,000 a year to determine how deep and genuine were the wishes of the people of Greater Victoria for a university.

"The people of this community can be proud," Mr. Bennett said.

But I hope you won't stop raising your share because these matching grants will still be needed for university development and we hope to be able to raise them still higher in future years".

Christians To Pray For Unity

Dear Dr. Mulder: What is the danger in deferring an operation for removal of an inward goller?—L.R.

Ordinarily it just prolongs the symptoms. An inward goller can cause discomfort in the neck, difficulty in swallowing, trouble in breathing. If cancer is suspected the need for immediate action is mandatory.

Dear Dr. Mulder: I am 37 and have been terribly annoyed with itching and burning of the vulva, on one side. Is this condition caused by my age?—R.L.

No. The commonest causes are trichomonas vaginalis, a frequent nuisance, or an early case of diabetes.

Virus Kills Gaitskell

TAMMY CULLUM
... new tragedy

LONDON (UPI) — Labor Party leader Hugh Gaitskell died Friday night of a mystery virus at the age of 56, upsetting his party's hopes of ousting Prime Minister Macmillan in the next election.

His death plunged the socialists into a crisis of leadership. They had expected Gaitskell to lead them to victory because of the growing problems plaguing Macmillan's Conservative Party, a victory which would have made Gaitskell prime minister.

POISED FOR VICTORY

Harold Wilson, who would be foreign minister in any future Labor cabinet, cut short a U.S. lecture tour to return to London. In New York he said he mourned his leader.

"He has died just when the party seemed poised for a great election victory," said called him the architect of the expected victory.

Gaitskell became ill in December, apparently recovered and scheduled a meeting with Soviet Premier Khrushchev but the virus struck again, inflaming the membranes around his heart and lungs.

His condition deteriorated suddenly Tuesday night and he gradually grew weaker although doctors had used an artificial kidney machine for five hours in an unsuccessful attempt to save him.

JOKED WITH WIFE

Only Thursday he quipped to his wife Anna when doctors arrived for their third examination: "Here come the plumbers."

Gaitskell, whose meteoric political climb came at the end of the Second World War, spent the war years assessing spy data on Germany's economic potential.

Sir Winston Churchill, his long-time opponent and wartime leader, said last night his death is a great loss to the nation. Macmillan sent a telegram to the widow: "He had achieved great political stature."

Queen Elizabeth said she learned of his death with "deep distress."

Mrs. Gaitskell, who had been married to him for 25 years was at his bedside when he died. He is also survived by two daughters, Julia, 24, and Cecilia, 20.

CANADIAN TRIBUTES

In Ottawa Prime Minister John Diefenbaker said he was "very saddened" by the death of Mr. Gaitskell.

"He was a fine parliamentarian, a devoted public servant. He has been a courageous and fearless leader of men."

"The Commonwealth will miss him for he was a dedicated friend," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Liberal leader Lester Pearson, reached in London, Ont., said Mr. Gaitskell's death left him with "a great sense of shock and grief."

GRIEVOUS LOSS

"He was an old and valued friend," said Mr. Pearson. "His death is a grievous loss not only to his own party but to his country. A man of his calibre can be ill-spared."

New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas termed the Labor leader's death "a tragedy" for both the British Labor Party and the United Kingdom as a whole.

In Washington, President Kennedy said he was "deeply grieved" to learn of Gaitskell's death.

"His strength of character, force of intelligence, and generosity of purpose, made him one of the foremost figures of the western community. In his passing, freedom loses a gallant champion," Kennedy said.

Tshombe Dubious

ELIZABETHVILLE (Reuters) — President Moïse Tshombe of Katanga province said Friday he still is not satisfied with assurances about an amnesty for himself and his regime.

Tshombe made his complaint after the U.N. announced its forces will enter Katanga in three days.

Congress Boos Chinese

EAST BERLIN (Reuters) — The rift between Communist China and the Soviet Union became more acute Friday when China's chief delegate was publicly humiliated at the East German Communist party congress.

Congress delegates broke into a chorus of whistles, boos and foot-stomping during a 30-minute speech by Chinese delegate Wu Hsiuehuan as he defended China's ideological position.

It was the first such uproar involving a Chinese Communist since the dispute between Moscow and Peking became public more than two years ago.

From the speaker's rostrum, Wu stared back disdainfully at the boosing delegates—and later a Chinese representative told reporters a cheap invective would not deflect China from its principles.

Our University

IF THERE was any doubt remaining about Victoria getting a university of its own, it was finally dispelled yesterday by Premier Bennett. At the opening of the Clearview Building on the new Gordon Head campus the premier said the time had come for British Columbia to have two universities, competing with one another in healthy rivalry.

It is now to be assumed that the charter that will give Victoria College its independence from UBC will be introduced at the forthcoming session of the legislature, and the odds are strongly in favor of an announcement to that effect being made in the Speech from the Throne next Thursday.

Not the least important part of Premier Bennett's announcement, with its frequent references to the "new university," was that for the first time the Victoria institution would receive a separate capital grant from the government. Hitherto the grants for Victoria College have been made through UBC, and the College has merely received from the government the matching dollar which Mr. Bennett three years ago promised to provide for all funds publicly raised.

Mr. Bennett, while promising capital grants to Victoria University, assured Dr. MacDonald, president of UBC, who attended the opening ceremony, that the change-over would in no way affect the government grants or interest in UBC.

The premier gave another utterance of future intentions when he expressed the hope that the first chancellor of the new university would be Dr. J. B. Clearhue, president of the Victoria College Council, and the man for whom the first building on the new campus has been named.

Government and civic officials who attended the ceremony wore smiling faces as they realized that the long and at times bitter fight to give Victoria university status was over.

It was a great day for the capital city, and the thousands of its citizens who have given their time and money towards the goal—it now remains for the faculty of the infant university to show that under its own steam it can raise itself to levels of academic and scientific grandeur that will bring it national and even international acclaim.

De Gaulle and NATO

OF EVEN GREATER moment to the Western world than his attempt to bar Britain's entry into the European Common Market, was President de Gaulle's cold rejection of President Kennedy's plan to redesign NATO as a multilateral force armed with American nuclear weapons and unified under NATO command.

While freely admitting that American nuclear arms remain the essential guarantee of world peace, President de Gaulle realistically points out that even if such weapons were accepted by the NATO nations the United States would still be in direct control of their use.

Upon this fact rests the reason for the French president's recalcitrance. He is firmly convinced that ever since the development by the Soviet Union of nuclear missiles capable of imperilling the North American continent, the United States government has looked upon the defence of Europe as a matter of secondary importance.

Accordingly, his view is that no one can say now where, when, how and in what measure American nuclear weapons would be used to defend Europe. Thus it is, he maintains, that the American nuclear presence does not respond to all eventualities of concern to Europe and France.

He sums up: "For this reason, principle and conditions, and circumstances have led us to the determination to equip ourselves with an atomic force that shall be our own."

Already President de Gaulle's strong and apparently unshakable views on the matter have caused consternation in Washington and undoubtedly were responsible for President Kennedy's remarkable change of attitude toward his European allies which was so noticeable in his State of the Union message to the Congress.

In this major speech, Mr. Kennedy suddenly dropped his recently-developed predilection of trampling upon the feelings of his Western comrades-in-arms to take a far more respectful and conciliatory stand.

Far removed indeed from his deprecating remarks made about other Western powers earlier this month was his statement: "The Nassau agreement recognized that the security of the West is indivisible, and so must be our defence. But it also recognizes that this is an alliance of proud and sovereign nations, and works best when we do not forget it."

From there the American president went on to note his official acceptance of the fact that France was determined to remain an independent nuclear nation and suggest that new ways must be found to "increase the role of our other partners in planning, manning and directing a truly multilateral nuclear force within an increasingly intimate NATO alliance."

From this it is obvious that President Kennedy, flushed as he may yet be over his Cuban victory, recognizes that in Charles de Gaulle he may at last have met his match.

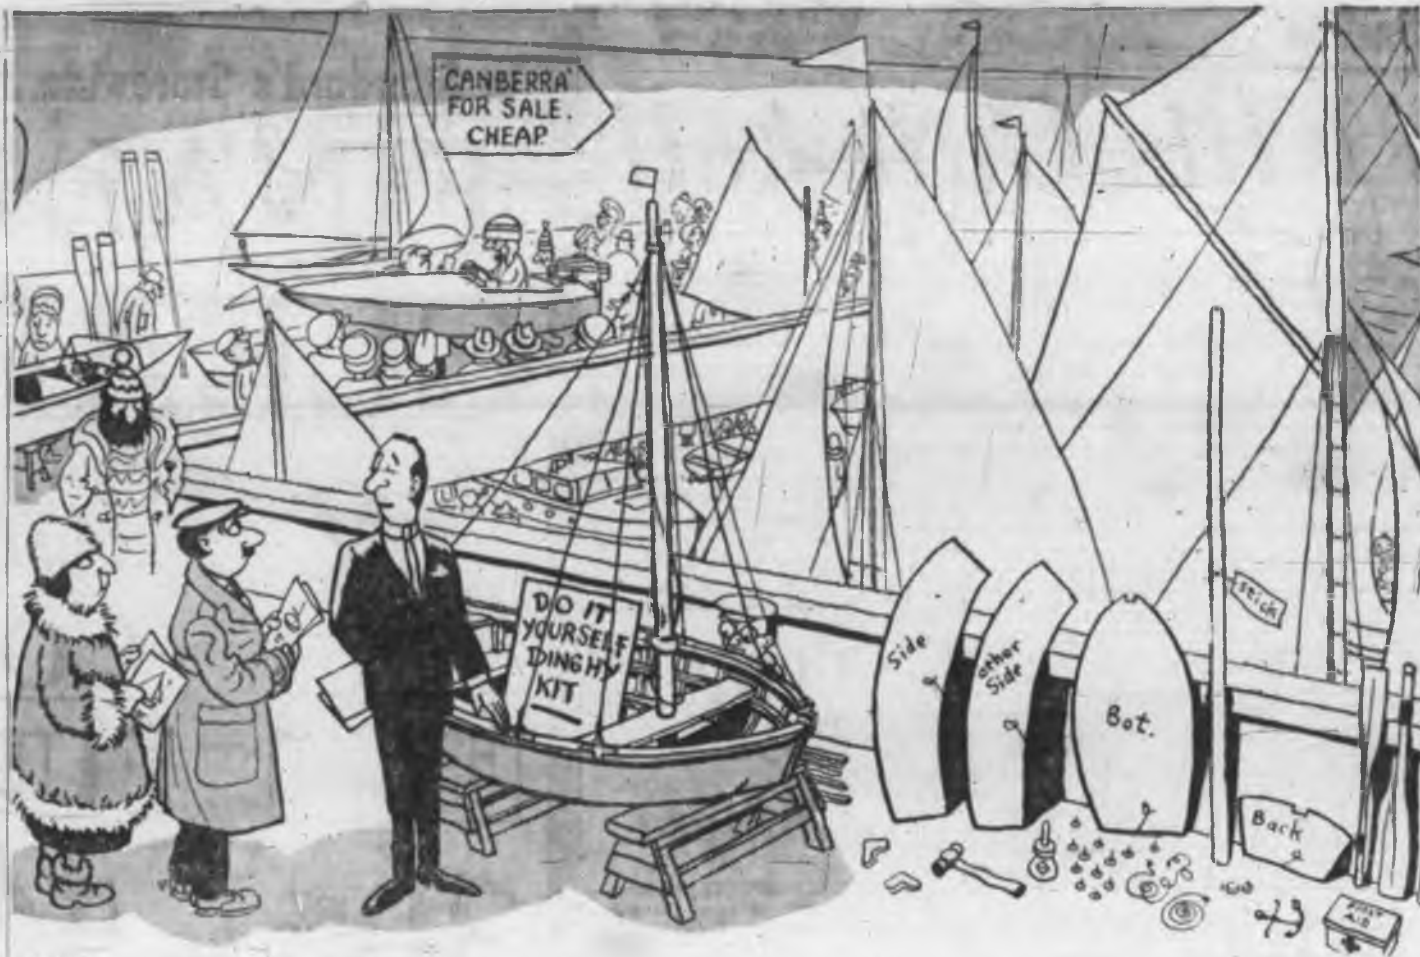

'Joe' North

THIS IS MORE the age of the common mould than it was around the turn of the century when Christopher "Joe" North was a young man, and with him there died this week one of the city's staunch individualists.

Joe North—it would be a misnomer—he would agree to call him "Mr."—belonged to the grass roots of local life and activity, and it was in pursuit of that menage he wound his way all through his 83 years. He was what cities like to call a "character" and his ever-present bowler hat alone set and kept him apart as a distinctive feature of the town.

Joe had held public office as a police commissioner but it was his legendary charity collections and unorthodox approach that became part of the lore of his adopted city. He was credited with raising large sums for the common weal and his endeavors in the realm of welfare work were a reflection of his main goal in life.

His calibre may be judged by his formal recognition in 1937 as the citizen of the year. He plowed a salty field with unrestrained vigor and in so doing he added color to the local scene and was enrolled permanently in the annals of its history.

"I'm afraid we don't supply a do-it-yourself-get-you-home-aircraft with this one, sir. Only with the larger models."

Washington-Calling

Speedily Over the Thin Ice

By MARQUIS CHILDS

IN President Kennedy's sober, restrained speech on the state of the union there was a broad yet modest grasp of where the United States stands at home and abroad. The priorities he set for the Congress and the nation in the coming year were on the same reasonable scale.

In the gap between what is within the reach of the chief executive—their potential to influence the course of domestic and foreign policy and what falls outside the scope of his powers is the question for 1963. Even before he could speak the words of his prepared text one of the goals at the heart of his foreign policy, as expressed there, had been loftily dismissed.

This is the effort to build a multi-national nuclear force within the framework of the NATO alliance. The president had expressed the hope that the Nassau agreement with Prime Minister Macmillan on acceptance of Polaris missiles would be the basis for such a force.

But President de Gaulle at a press conference a few hours before the Kennedy message rejected not only the Polaris offer but the very concept of a multi-national nuclear deterrent with shared control and direction over all nuclear weapons.

Insisting on his own "go it alone" national policy, de Gaulle in his singular style, which unites imperial splendor with a kind of pitying condescension for all powers that fall before the pinnacle of French greatness, dismissed the whole idea. He went on to put the terms of Britain's admission to the European Common Market—orienting the whole of the British economy—on what must appear at first reading an impossibly high plane.

This suggests what is perhaps an essential weakness in the Kennedy message. Granted that with its political overtones a State of the Union speech is bound to try to put the best possible look on things, still the president might have been more realistic about the troubled state of the alliance and the grave difficulties of coalition diplomacy. He skated over this thin ice with a cheerful speed that hardly recognized its hazards.

Similarly the balance-of-payments deficit that may well be the heart of the U.S. administration's problem both at home and abroad got scarcely more than a nod of recognition. President de Gaulle's insistence on his own national nuclear deterrent, absorbing so large a share of French defence expenditures, makes certain that there will be no help from this quarter for the buildup of European conventional forces that might relieve the United States of some share of the arms cost. It is the outgo for this burden in Europe that causes most of the dollar deficit.

The president's reach when it comes to domestic programs is longer. His tax reduction proposals will have broad support. The doubt here is over timing and scope.

By boldly linking a substantial tax cut—$13.5 billion over three years—with tax reform the president is putting a formidable package before the Congress. The ranking members of the committees on each side of the Capitol are opposed to most if not all of the reforms the president seeks. The lengthy process of hearings, debate within the committees and finally consideration by House and Senate will consume months of time since a cut is linked to the controversy of reform. The Keynesian approach of taxing and spending by government as a stimulus to business—had a difficult test in the depression of the thirties. What came out was almost invariably too little and too late and it was not until the big war orders beginning in 1941 that the end of mass unemployment was in sight. This is an easier test, and the outcome will have a lot to say not only about the theory but about the workability of a government of divided powers.

On the Peace Corps, the most appealing single achievement of his administration, the president was in the forefront that marked his inaugural address of a year ago. To this extent at least he could point with pride to the result of his call for service and devotion—"ask not what your country can do for you, ask what you can do for your country."

His approach in the message to a domestic Peace Corps is one that will be hard for Congress to ignore. If it is good for Nigeria, Colombia, the Philippines and other points of the globe, then it should not be denied to the trouble spots here at home. The same idealism that sending thousands of volunteers around the world should be even more compelling in the face of American needs.

The president might have said a great deal more about the confrontation with the Soviet Union over Cuba. He could have boasted, doing a little missile rattling of his own. Instead he chose to speak with restraint and understatement. In this singularly uncertain moment it was a wise decision.

In Captain Bligh's Islands

A Rift on Independence

By a Special OFEN Correspondent from Suva

TO discover the feelings of Fiji about its future, Britain has sent Mr. Nigel Fisher from its Colonial Office to this group of 322 islands in the Pacific Ocean.

Fiji was discovered by Tasman in 1643, but the islands were first recorded in detail by Captain Bligh, after the mutiny on the Bounty in 1789. Only one-third of the islands (about 106) are inhabited, and the total population is fewer than half a million. All the islands became part of the British Empire in October, 1874, when the British chiefs ceded "to Queen Victoria, her heirs and successors, possession of and full sovereignty over the whole of the group of Pacific islands known as Fiji, to the intent that they should be annexed to and be a possession and dependency of the British Crown."

On the face of it there seems no reason to alter this state of affairs, because in December last year the Legislative Council passed a resolution "recognizing the wish of the Fijian people that there should be no change in the present constitution of the colony until the Fijian people express their desire for further constitutional changes."

But the real situation is not quite so clear. The Legislative Council consists of the British governor, the Speaker, and 16 official members, five European members (three elected, two nominated), five Fijian members (three elected, two nominated), and five Indian members (three elected, two nominated). It was the suggestion of the governor, Sir Kenneth Macdonald, that the council should consider steps to be taken towards independence and self-government. The mover of the motion, Ravuama Vunivalu, left no doubt where the Fijians stand.

In a highly emotional speech he declared: "We have kept our part of the bargain by our devoted loyalty to the Crown, which has been shown in no uncertain way by sacrifices in life and in other ways. . . . We demand to know whether our bond with the Crown is the same as when the High Chiefs of Fiji handed over their land and their people to her late Majesty, Queen Victoria."

When it came to the vote, the European official members, under instructions from the colonial secretary, abstained. All the Fijians and all the European non-official members present voted in favor. But all the Indians voted against.

The significance is this: In the population of Fiji there are about 11,000 Europeans, 170,000 Fijians, but more than 200,000 Indians. So the Indians outnumber both other races, and if their members in the Legislative Council fairly represent their people's views, they are not content with the old fealty to a British Queen who died more than 60 years ago.

The rapid growth of the Indian community is the main cause of unrest in Fiji. When the first Indian immigrants arrived in the last century no thought was given to the present consequences, and when, recently, a campaign was launched to train Indian women in birth-control, it was too late to alter the pattern. Fijians realize that the disparity in numbers between them and the Indians is likely to grow rather than lessen. In any democratic application of the one-man-one-vote principle, Indians will command a majority over Fijians.

It would matter less if Indians and Fijians looked at life in the same way. But they are poles apart.

The Fijian lives off the land. He is easy-going and indolent. Little effort has been made to develop the productive value of his land. He has little business aptitude, and is still partly subject to tribal law and discipline.

The Indian is a hard worker with a shrewd business sense. Apart from a few overseas firms, almost the whole of the shop-keeping community is Indian. Tourism is an important source of revenue for Fiji, and when a tourist ship is in port the shopkeepers do well. But the really golden harvest falls to the taxi drivers, and these are nearly all Indian.

In the rural areas Indians are the main body of sugar-cane growers; and most practicing lawyers are, in Fiji, Indian too.

Since the Indian is not only a shrewd businessman, but also a careful saver, living an abstemious life, his community now has a solid financial stake in the islands. The great majority are peaceful as well as prosperous, but there is a wayward element which seems susceptible to the agitator.

What are now locally referred to as "the disturbances"—the almost total disruption of the colony's internal economy and essential services some three years ago—were caused almost entirely by agitators among the Indians.

Predictable attitudes were manifest in the December debate. Said one of the European members: "The world has seen too much in the last few years of countries being given their freedom, so-called, when some of them did not want it and certainly in most cases were not fit for it."

One of the most influential Fijian chiefs, Ratu Penia Ganilau, poured scorn on the activities of UN representatives of newly-sovereign states, "some of them in their twenties who make speeches in New York telling other people just how they should run their countries."

But the general Indian view is that they have nothing to lose and much to gain if independence is brought to Fiji. And one of its spokesmen, Dr. Sahu Khan condemned the idea that only the Fijians were entitled to be consulted if Britain proposed any variation in the Deed of Cession.

This is the rift that Britain's envoy, Nigel Fisher, faces on his visit. But he will also find one subject on which Europeans, Fijians and Indians are agreed. The islands that Captain Bligh surveyed cannot stand on their own feet economically, and none of the communities would willingly pursue any course of action that jeopardized Britain's policy of financial aid. Over the last 15 years this has amounted to something over $4 million. Nobody in Fiji wants to see that dry up.

"Of course we're better off today, Comrade. Remember how crowded we used to be?"

Last Straw

WORKING TO RULE, plus the ban on overtime, in the electricity supply business has already invaded our hospitals and, although the death of a baby was not directly caused by this action, the mother's life was put in peril. The London Electricity Board workers may get away with that, but there is something they won't get away with.

I'll let them into a secret. It's the Telly and the Tea. The British are a long-suffering people, but they will NOT do without their beloved Telly and their beloved Tea.

If the Idiot's Lantern is extinguished and the cuppa not forthcoming from the teapot, the citizenry will take to the streets, they will be manning the barricades and, over the border, the heather will be ablaze.

During the last war Hitler tried by bomb, shell and torpedo to cut our supplies of oil, food, steel, chemicals, munitions and to shatter our homes.

Had the dreary blackguard concentrated on denying us tea, he might well have got us. But what he didn't know was that the British can face any adverse situation with a nice cup of tea—especially these days if it be drunk in front of the damnable Telly. Electrical go-slows— you have been warned!

A PLEA has been made for people not to shoot wild duck this winter. Why anybody should want to shoot a wild duck in any weather is beyond me. But the reason for the plea is very rich. It is that there is not enough meat on the starving birds to make them worth eating.

What barbarians we can be at times. I've heard some lame excuses in my time but the one put forward to excuplate the British troops who went berserk at Minden last week, is a bit of a record-breaker. It is that the beer in the soldiers' canteen was frozen, so the lads went out and got drunk on the local product and broke up the town.

For minus validity it comes in the same class as the Australian dockers who, when faced with unloading a cargo of whisky in Sydney Harbor, demanded "temperament money" so that they would not steal the stuff.

For Trade

Struggle Ahead

By DAVID GREENIE

IN a short time tall, lantern-jawed Christian Herter plans to set off to Europe on a history-making mission. The former U.S. Secretary of State is acting as chief U.S. negotiator with the European Common Market, under the Kennedy Trade Expansion Act.

And the purpose of the Herter mission is to prepare the ground for the tariff talks ahead.

Under the act, the president has power to remove all tariffs on goods in which the U.S. and Europe account for 80 per cent or more of world trade. He also has the power to reduce tariffs by up to 50 per cent on the other goods.

The joker in the pack, Britain's application to join the Common Market.

With Britain in Europe, the Trade Expansion Act could bring about dramatic changes in world trade. But if Britain withdraws its application because it can't get suitable terms, the act would be largely ineffective.

For Canada, the stakes are enormous. If Britain succeeds in joining the Common Market and the U.S. is able to lower tariffs all round under the Trade Expansion Act, Canada would have to adapt to drastic changes in the pattern of world trade. If the initiative fails, then the status quo will prevail.

What are the political possibilities?

Britain will likely act as a doormat for the U.S. and Europe, despite the present question marks against U.K. entry into Europe. But there's always the possibility that any deal made by Macmillan would be reversed by a Labor government.

The paramountcy of French influence in the Common Market makes it likely that Europe will become more of a rival and less of a partner as time goes by. Unless U.S. diplomacy becomes less unsuitable than it's been in the recent past.

The trend would be towards greater self-sufficiency on Europe's part; something already foreshadowed in the field of agriculture.

(It's also apparent in France's determination to have its own nuclear deterrent and the coolness with which President de Gaulle has received the U.S. offer of Polaris missiles.)

Under these conditions, Europe's bargaining with the U.S. would probably be every bit as tough as its bargaining with Britain is proving right now.

Already the U.S. is resigned to the fact that the creation of the Common Market will mean losses in some areas of its trade (like agricultural products). And it's hardly to be expected that Canada will fare any better.

In fact, the odds are that Canada may fare badly—particularly if Britain's entry into Europe means the end of Commonwealth Preference.

All of this indicates that one of Canadian industry's top objectives must be to be ready for the struggle ahead.

There are going to be few rides—whether on the U.S. or Europe. The only alternative: growing isolation outside the mainstream of North Atlantic development.

That could make Canada the Portugal or the Spain of the 1970s.

Dental Rules Set Up

The hitherto doomed species of dental mechanics who can deal directly with the public got a new lease on life yesterday.

New regulations put into effect by order-in-council put such mechanics permanently in business in B.C. but set higher standards.

LAST SESSION

Simultaneous with the new regulations came proclamation of a law passed at the last session of the legislature.

The law distinguished between dental technicians and dental mechanics. The latter could deal with the public; the former could not.

AS REQUIRED

The regulations mean new dental mechanics must meet higher educational standards plus such further education or technical training as may be required.

Details of such training have not been worked out but will mean courses at UBC as set up by the dental faculty, an official said.

Tentative Approval Given Harbor Bylaw

Approval in principle was given by city council yesterday to new regulations designed to safeguard the beauty of the Inner Harbor.

The new bylaw would establish an "Inner Harbor precinct" taking in the entire block on which the Empress Hotel stands and all property fronting on Belleville, between Douglas and Montreal streets.

SETBACK RULES

All future developments in the area covered by the proposed precinct would be governed by stiffer setback regulations.

Because provincial government property figures largely in the scheme city council decided that the Capital Improvement District Commission should be consulted before any

A Victoria man serving in Europe with the RCAF is one of 30 drivers taking part in the famous Monte Carlo rally which starts today.

He is Sgt. Tom Wylie, a 29-year-old armament instructor with the RCAF's No. 3 Wing in Germany. Sgt. Wylie will drive his own car, a 1962 Morris Cooper, with a German dentist as navigator.

He is the son of Mrs. Margaret Wylie, 1722 Donnelly, who said last night cars have always been his hobby.

dinner meeting

Traveller Here Monday

Walter Leonard Woodhouse, supreme councillor of the United Commercial Travellers of America fraternal organization, will speak to Victoria members at a dinner meeting at 6:30 p.m. Monday at the Empress Hotel.

Mr. Woodhouse, former Oak Bay reeve, councillor and police commissioner, is only the second Canadian to hold the office of supreme councillor in the 75-year history of the organization.

The fraternal group has founded an accident insurance company, the proceeds of which go to the aid of injured children.

All for John D

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker won a standing ovation and a unanimous vote of "unbounded confidence" in his leadership from 1,500 delegates at the national Conservative party convention Friday.

"That gives the lie to those outside our party trying to distract from our leader," said a spokesman, chairman of the resolutions committee, told the convention after unanimous adoption of the confidence vote.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked the convention not to limit the government but allow it flexibility to make crucial decisions on limiting Canadian acceptance of nuclear arms and Commonwealth nuclear weapons if disarmament efforts prove fruitless by next December.

It was better to move slowly and be right than rush in and make policy changes keyed to popular whims and be proved wrong, he said.

The leadership resolution and another affirming devotion and loyalty to the Queen were the only resolutions dealt with Friday. Left for today, final day of the convention, were 46 separate expressions of commendation and 52 recommendations to the government.

These included a number of contentious proposals, one relating to Canadian acceptance of nuclear arms and Commonwealth nuclear weapons if disarmament efforts prove fruitless by next December.

Just before voting confidence in Mr. Diefenbaker, the convention elected Egan Chambers, 41-year-old Montreal insurance broker and former parliamentary secretary for defence, as national president of the association.

The Voice of French-Canadian delegates was heard prominently when he voted 183 to 164 delegates deleted reference to "dominion" in the party constitution and replaced it with the word "national."

Victorian Admits Extortion Attempt

Charged with attempted extortion of $2,500, Alan Ramsay, 1008 Southgate, entered a plea of guilty in city magistrate's court yesterday.

He was remanded to Jan. 24 for probation report and sentence.

City detective W. W. Oakwell told the court Ramsay first phoned his intended victim, retired Oak Bay businessman John Todd, 531 Newport, Jan. 7 asking if he would like to buy two tape recordings and a photograph.

The situation came to a head Monday when after two more phone calls, the accused phoned Mr. Todd and threatened to sell the tapes and photograph to an eastern magazine unless Mr. Todd paid him $2,500.

He was to bring the money in five, ten and twenty-five dollar bills and the balance in five, ten and twenty-five dollar bills and the balance in five, ten and twenty-five dollar bills.

Mr. Todd got in touch with city police who urged him to go ahead with the scheme but TOKYO (AP)—Seven fishermen were drowned and 22 others were feared lost in hazy, stormy waters off the northern coast of Japan, the coast guard said Thursday.

Winds up to 70 miles an hour lashed the coast and waves up to 20 feet high battered the fishing boats in the area. The temperatures in Tokyo dropped to 23 degrees, the lowest this year.

No Price-War in Meat Say Store Spokesmen

Spokesmen for Greater Victoria meat outlets last night scotched rumors a price war is developing among stores.

"Nonsense," they said. "There has been a drop in the cost of beef and we're just passing it along to the customer."

Beef prices rose in the final months of 1962 and have now dropped to some extent. "And," one spokesman said, "we hope they will drop still further."

A similar drop in steak prices was noted in Vancouver, where spokesmen also denied any price war.

In Victoria supermarkets, sirloin T-bone and club steaks were priced at 85 cents a pound and Porterhouse at 98 cents.

An independent butcher said last night there has been a slight drop in the cost of beef but claimed it hadn't dropped that much.

LETTERS to the Editor

To be considered for publication in whole or in part letters must be of general interest, not more than 100 words in length, and if signed must be accompanied by the writer's name and address.

Recently an interview with a Mr. Kennedy concerning racial segregation in Inuvik, N.W.T., was published in your paper. Having lived in Inuvik and being familiar with the situation in the north, I challenge Mr. Kennedy's statements and charge that he has greatly exaggerated a one-sided story.

He said that Mr. Diefenbaker was not permitted to see the poorer section of the town. This is ridiculous. For one thing, the term "poorer section" is existent only in the minds of those who are not familiar with the situation. The native population is perfectly happy with the facilities which have been made available to them. In fact, I think many of the older natives would feel burdened living like whitemen. As for the children, all are cared for in hostels during the school term.

Secondly, Mr. Diefenbaker was not kept from seeing anything. He was driven around the entire town, as were the governor-general and his wife. Mr. Kennedy also said that the native population live in tents. This too is absolutely ridiculous. If you went to Inuvik today, you would have difficulty finding such a dwelling. The government has built multi-room cabins for the natives.

Crosswalk at Courtenay Suggested for Children

COURTENAY School trustees here are asking for a crosswalk at the Ryan-Arden intersection to protect children who disembark from the school bus about the time heavy traffic starts to flow from the airport.

Trustees are also seeking permission by the department of education to add two rooms to the four-room school now under construction at Arden.

One room is needed now and another will be required by September. The board will also seek departmental views on the addition of an activity room now because it would be more economical now the contractor is at the site than it will be in a year or two.

Flames Injure Boy

A 16-year-old boy was burned on his right arm in a fire late last night that gutted the basement of his Victoria home causing about $1,200 damage.

Gordon Fyle, Jr., was treated at the emergency ward of Royal Jubilee Hospital and allowed to leave.

A spokesman for the city fire department said it was understood the fire broke out as a member of the family filled a cigarette lighter from a half-gallon can of gasoline.

Eight people living in the house at 1512 Vining spent last night in the home of neighbors Mr. and Mrs. R. H. J. Lott, 1526 Vining.

Other persons in the house were Mrs. Fyle, David, six; Bruce, eight; Betty-Anne, 12, and Myna-Gale, 18.

"I guess he burned his arm on the rail, which was burning,"

Tourist Aid Object Of New Firm

A new company has invaded the tourist publication business in Victoria with plans to publish seven different brochures covering Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands.

Managing director of Guide-Post Services Ltd. is F. W. Mantell, 2173 Central, who says the company will publish under seven classifications—motel, shopping, dining, hotel, resort, fun map and tour map—with a total circulation of $50,000.

COMPLETE SET

The literature will be circulated to about 1,000 points in Canada and the western United States.

Each participating operator will be supplied with a complete set of the seven directories so a tourist can readily be assisted.

Women Unhurt In Collision

Mrs. Florence Hanwell, 75 of Towler Park Road, escaped without injury when the car she was driving rolled over after a collision with another at Mills Road and East Saanich Road yesterday.

Mrs. Bessie Pollock of 5360 Sparrow, driver of the other car, was badly shaken but unhurt in the accident.

WFC Considering Four Teams In Playoffs?

CALGARY (CP)—Managers of the five Western Football Conference clubs will study a new playoff system which would include the fourth-place team, it was learned Friday night.

Managers of four of the clubs are here to discuss WFC business in preparation for a meeting of the Canadian Football League at Hamilton in February.

Ken Preston of the Regina Roughriders was not present for Friday's sessions but he was expected to be here today.

The current playoff system involves the three top-ranking teams.

The spokesman said the managers will study a playoff schedule in which the fourth-place club would meet the third-place club. It was not suggested just how this series would run.

The winner of that series would play the second-place team in a sudden-death series. The WFC championship would be decided in a best-of-three game contest, as it is now.

The spokesman said the managers, who are meeting privately, discussed a 1963 schedule and are "getting fairly close to agreement."

The absence of Preston held up preparation of a final draft, which would have to be presented to the CFL meeting for approval.

Contracts for radio broadcasts of the season's action also were discussed Friday, said the spokesman. The clubs earlier agreed that rather than sell radio broadcast rights on a league basis each would make its own decisions on this matter.

No Flutter On Soccer This Week

LONDON (AP)—The British soccer week was cancelled for the fourth week running. Friday and soccer faced the prospect of another almost blank Saturday.

Of 46 English League games scheduled for today, 34 had been called off by Friday night as below zero temperatures still left pitches snowbound or frozen.

Other postponements could follow today.

Most English League clubs have been without a game since before Christmas. Millions of Britons who play the pools each Saturday have gone without their weekly flutter.

Many clubs are still trying to settle third-round English Cup ties, which were supposed to be played two weeks ago. Club spokesmen said many cup games, already postponed two and three times and now rearranged for next Monday, will have to be put off again unless the weather chance quickly.

Most of today's Rugby Union games have been called off but the Wales-England international at Cardiff was still officially on the program.

All games in the English Rugby League were postponed.

Conservation Group Takes Stand To Pacific Area Fishing Director

By ALAN MERRIMAN

If the Amalgamated Conservation Society, representing 20,000 lower Vancouver Island sports fishermen, cannot get action through the federal fisheries department to curtail net fishing at the entrance to Juan de Fuca Strait, it is quite prepared to pursue other means, even if it means an international level.

That was the message left in Vancouver Wednesday by a three-man Amalgamated Conservation Society delegation which carried complaints of dwindling sports fishing salmon catches to Pacific Area Director W. R. Houston, his top-level staff, and James Murray, sportmen's representative on an advisory committee of the International Pacific Salmon Commission, which controls net fishing dates for sockeye and pinks.

The delegation also met with B.C. Federation of Fish and Game Clubs secretary manager Ed Meade, who said he would seek nationwide support for the Amalgamated's action brief at the convention of the Canadian Wildlife Federation in Alberta Feb. 1 and 2.

Delegation chairman Robert Wright said the meetings with fisheries officials brought few promises of action, except the committee was able to put forth its view in as strong a manner possible. Other members of the delegation were Brentwood guide Jim Gilbert and Dick Williams, of the Pacific Trailers' Association, which is a member group of the ACS.

Chairman of the International Pacific Salmon Commission Senator Tom Reid refused to see the Victoria delegation, apparently upon advice of federal fisheries. Pacific Area director Houston, who thought the Amalgamated's complaints were strictly a Canadian matter.

Murray, sportmen's representative on the commission's advisory committee, promised to put forth the views of the Amalgamated.

Wright told the Colonist that Houston would not accept the Amalgamated's action brief at the International Pacific Salmon Commission regulations affect coho and sport fishing.

After a four-hour meeting with officials of the fisheries department the committee returned to Victoria with sympathy, but no promise of action, other than a closer look at the Cowichan Bay coho run, Wright said.

Wright said that Houston had no answer for the lack of coho in the Victoria area, other than there was a good quantity of coho caught by the nets and a good escapement to the river spawning beds.

USED FOR YEARS

The big catch by net fishermen is interpreted as an abundance of those species in the area, rather than the result of increased exploitations, the delegation was told. This method of estimates has been used for years by the department and they see no need for a change, Wright said. He (Houston) did not appear to feel improved methods of fishing had any bearing in the estimate method.

One crumb held out to the Port Renfrew to Sidney fishermen was an assurance that they will have better fishing this year... for pink salmon, because a good run of pinks is anticipated.

Houston showed interest in voluntary cutbacks in limits (to four salmon) suggested by the sports fishermen, but wasn't prepared to go along with restrictions suggested for commercial net fishermen.

He told the delegation that it was no longer economical to demand for a three-mile to fish the sockeye and pinks.

He objected because it would give American fishermen an advantage over Canadians. There are no quotas on coho fishing.

He felt it was too high a sacrifice to appease Canadian sports fishermen," Wright added.

Houston thought the Cowichan Bay run may have a bearing on the lack of fish off the Victoria waterfront.

He told the delegation the Cowichan run this year was a weak run, intermingled with heavy runs to other rivers.

He (Houston) felt they could not sacrifice exploitation of healthy runs to benefit the weak Cowichan run," Wright said.

FUTURE EFFECT

Wright said that Houston acknowledged the new trend of a tremendous increase in sports fishing and sports spending and admitted sports fishing will affect future policies of the fisheries department.

Sportmen's representative Murray promised to keep the Amalgamated fully informed on all developments pertaining to the International Pacific Salmon Commission.

The Amalgamated delegation will recommend to the ACS that its protests about Murray be tabled until his fishermen can be fully assessed.

Murray, as well as being sportmen's representative to the advisory board, is a partner in a commercial fishing firm.

Chiefs Lose One When It Counted

Halda Chiefs, who once had high hopes of finishing first in the Inter-City Basketball League, find out tonight if they are good enough to place second.

Their chances of winning it all went flying out the window last night in Vancouver when they lost 70-65, to Vancouver Puritans. Now Chiefs find themselves two points behind second-place New Westminster Bakers, whom they face tonight at Central Junior High School at 8:30.

It's a win they must have. After tonight they have only two games remaining, both against the first-place North Vancouver Harleims.

Bakers, themselves driving for the lead, have a real edge over Chiefs in any fight for second spot, playing Puritans in their final two games.

If Chiefs are to have a chance, they will have to show a lot of improvement over their performance last night.

Manager Neil Sprinkling summed up their effort with "they couldn't rebound, and they couldn't rebound. It was just a bad, bad game."

THE MOMENTUM that coach Ken King hoped would start last night never materialized, although Chiefs led, 31-27, at the half and had the game tied, 60-60, with three minutes left.

Puritans, still with the slightest of chances to beat Chiefs out for the last playoff spot, burst into the lead from there, then stalled their way to the finish.

Mike Lemon scored 14 points for Puritans before fouling out late in the game.

Norris Martin was high man for Chiefs with 19 and Darrell Lorimer added 12.

Puritans are still six points behind Chiefs, and must win all three of their remaining games, while Chiefs lost three to tie for third place and a chance at the playoffs.

First-place team gets a bye into the final, and the team that places second gets the extra game at home in the semi-finals.

Puritans' Candlish, Brown, and Clark, and Chiefs' Martin, and Norris, were the top scorers in the game.

First-place team gets a bye into the final, and the team that places second gets the extra game at home in the semi-finals.

Puritans' Candlish, Brown, and Clark, and Chiefs' Martin, and Norris, were the top scorers in the game.

Chiefs' Coach Neil Sprinkling summed up their effort with "they couldn't rebound, and they couldn't rebound. It was just a bad, bad game."

THE MOMENTUM that coach Ken King hoped would start last night never materialized, although Chiefs led, 31-27, at the half and had the game tied, 60-60, with three minutes left.

Puritans, still with the slightest of chances to beat Chiefs out for the last playoff spot, burst into the lead from there, then stalled their way to the finish.

Mike Lemon scored 14 points for Puritans before fouling out late in the game.

Norris Martin was high man for Chiefs with 19 and Darrell Lorimer added 12.

Puritans are still six points behind Chiefs, and must win all three of their remaining games, while Chiefs lost three to tie for third place and a chance at the playoffs.

First-place team gets a bye into the final, and the team that places second gets the extra game at home in the semi-finals.

Colts' Owner Investigated

NEW YORK (UPI)—Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the National Football League said Friday his office is investigating alleged gambling on pro football games by Carroll Rosenbloom, owner of the Baltimore Colts.

Rozelle confirmed a Miami Herald report that scaled testimony in a former gambler's unsuccessful law suit against Rosenbloom was turned over to him by federal court order last November.

The NFL commissioner said, "We received copies of the document last November and have been exploring the allegations made in them."

Rosenbloom said in Baltimore that the charges were "totally unfounded." "Commissioner Rozelle has an affidavit denying each and every one of these charges, which are totally unfounded, as the will prove," he said.

De Piccoli finished King with the first punch of the scheduled 10-round bout. It was a left uppercut that landed solidly on the American's chin and sent him sprawling for the full count.

The blow had 24,000 boxing fans on their feet roaring and cheering.

ROME (AP)—Italian heavyweight Francesco De Piccoli knocked out Howard "King of Reno, Nev., in 12 seconds of the first round Friday night at the Rome Sports Palace.

The Italian boxer, 1960 Olympic gold medalist, is ranked 10th by the World Boxing Association.

De Piccoli finished King with the first punch of the scheduled 10-round bout. It was a left uppercut that landed solidly on the American's chin and sent him sprawling for the full count.

The blow had 24,000 boxing fans on their feet roaring and cheering.

Rozelle said his extended investigation, up to this point, has developed nothing of a criminal nature, such as point-shaving or actual throwing of games.

The commissioner made these statements after agreeing to a joint request by U.S. services for a briefing on the process of the investigation. Under the ground rules, laid down, there was no mention of specific incidents, names, places and identity of clubs involved.

"This is an investigation," Rozelle said, "not a series of announcements of league business in the public interest."

Asked whether the investigation had uncovered any point-shaving or throwing of games by a player or players, Rozelle replied:

"The strongest thing I can say is this: I am investigating up to this point has developed nothing of a criminal nature."

The betting investigation began in December when George Halas, owner-coach of the Chicago Bears, asked the commissioner to look into published and whispered rumors of a possible betting scandal.

Latest weather report from the ski slopes of Green Mountain: late temperature at 20 degrees, with three feet of old snow and one inch of new snow.

Nothing Criminal

NEW YORK (AP)—Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the National Football League said Friday he is "in a position now of attempting to complete our findings" in the professional football betting investigation. He said he hopes to announce them as soon as possible.

Garden Notes

Time for Onion Seeds

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

We were discussing the operation of an amateur's greenhouse in yesterday's column, and if you remember, I suggested the construction of a simple propagating case in which to germinate the earlier seeds. With such a "greenhouse within a greenhouse," or even in an outdoor cold-frame fitted with a soil-heating cable, a start can be made now with some flower and vegetable sowings so that sturdy young plants will be on hand when outdoor planting time rolls around.

Onions should be one of the first seeds to go in, for to raise the big exhibition-quality bulbs, the first sowing should be made around the end of January, as these need a long season of growth. Leeks, Brussels sprouts and cauliflower can all go in now too, giving the seed flats a temperature of 65 to 70 degrees.

When the little seedlings appear, their flats or pots should be removed from the propagating case and grown on in the open greenhouse at a somewhat lower temperature, and with all the sunlight they can get. When the plants are about two inches tall, it will be time to start another small batch of the same kinds.

In March I usually sow another batch of leeks, onions, cauliflower, cabbage and lettuce, but this time in an unheated coldframe or the open greenhouse. Then, in mid April, I repeat these sowings in open, outdoor beds, adding savoy to the list. In case you don't know this vegetable, a savoy is a cabbage with a permanent wave.

All this sounds like a big and complicated job, but it isn't really, for only a very small amount of seed is sown at any one time. The advantage of these staggered sowings is a steady and continuous supply of fresh vegetables from the garden without any gluts or shortages.

Quite a few home gardeners start their first batch of tomato plants around this time of year. This is fine if you have a heated greenhouse in which the plants may be kept growing steadily, with lots of sunlight and adequate ventilation, but January is far too early for the man who must raise his plants on a sunny kitchen windowsill.

The light in even the sunniest house window is far lower in intensity than in a greenhouse, and in consequence, the plants would be tall, skinny, spindly specimens by planting-out time, through being kept too long indoors. March is time enough to put in your tomato seeds—and in fact, I am beginning to think you get even better results if you wait until April.

Given a propagating case or a heated frame, snapdragon seed can be sown now for an early display. A temperature between 65 and 75 degrees is best for vigorous germination, but once the little plants get going, they must be grown in cool, airy conditions. If you use a cold-frame, it is a good idea to open it wide on fine, sunny days, for your object is to produce short, stocky, well-branched plants rather than big, lush, sappy specimens.

Snapdragons are inherently hardy plants—hardy enough to survive an average winter outdoors—and no good can come from pampering the plants once the seedlings have emerged. Pansies and violas, too, will do much better if germinated in warmth, then grown on in much cooler conditions.

Another flower that needs an early start is the little blue lobelia, used as a border edging around our outdoor flower beds. The seeds need about the same temperature for good germination—65 to 75 degrees—but the seedlings require a little more warmth than the harder snapdragons to keep them moving ahead.

Gamblers Surprise JOHN CROSBY

This Vice Is Out of Hand

DIVONNE-LES-BAINS, France—Gambling in the afternoon, to my mind, is something like drinking in the morning—the vice is out of hand. The casino here opens at 3 and I dropped around early to watch the afternoon gamblers, full of preconceptions left over from years of E. Phillips Oppenheim. I expected a gaggle of aging haridians clutching their reticules containing a tiny hoard of francs which they would play judiciously, following some mystic pattern of numbers.

None of this is true. In the first place, most of the players were men. The first person to arrive was a man who looked like Charles Coburn, shook hands with croupiers, waiters and bartenders like the familiar friend that he was, and sat down at table two.

None of these people was the dedicated old party, eking out a wretched life, playing one chip on 17, that I'd read through years of Monte Carlo literature. They were all vigorous, hearty types and they played with a relish. The most conspicuous woman was a beefy English woman, a very tweedy type whom you'd expect to find on an English country lane.

The most conspicuous man was a gray-haired, vital, very attractive Swiss in his early 40s, who came in when play started, threw about 20 100-franc ($20) chips on numbers ranging from one to 36, then went to the bar and drank a brandy as the little white ball spun around.

He must have had $400 on the table and he won $600, which he pocketed casually and moved to another table where he settled down to play in earnest. He played very well and very big.

Playing remorselessly, quickly, surely, and with great dash, he placed around $400 on every spin of the wheel and won steadily, sometimes winning up to $4,000 on a spin. And several times I saw him drop a real bundle. The big chips, when they came his way—the 1,000, 5,000, and 10,000 chips—he'd salt away in inside pocket.

But then, the big fellows would come out when he lost his 1,000s to be changed into 100s. Three times I saw him go up to the window for fresh chips. His play was very easy to follow because he was the only person in the room consistently playing 100-franc chips.

I left for a drink at 5:30 and I was gone for an hour. When I got back I noticed that the air had changed. The afternoon regulars had departed for their homes or for Geneva. Later, a quite different, younger crowd would arrive.

However, the gray-haired Swiss was still at it. He was a talking gambler, talking incessantly to the croupiers and his fellow gamblers, smoking deeply and incessantly. At 8 I went for dinner and a movie. When I came back, he looked worried. Instead of 100s he was playing 10s.

At 1 a.m. when I left for good, he was just watching and muttering a bit. The casino attendants told me he was a Swiss builder and a very successful one, who comes in and plays heavily two or three days running. The casino attendants also told me he won that day; he always starts with 100s and tapers off with 10s and then nothing.

I don't believe it. No gambler in history ever started with 100s and went to 10s and nothing when he's winning. Only when he's losing.

Billy Rose Seeks Writer

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Mighty showman Billy Rose has been offered an advance $50,000 by Doubleday for his biography. Billy, who writes well, does not want to write his own story and is hoping to land someone of the stature of John "Nobel winner" Steinbeck to do his story. This is not to be an autobiography.

Richard Burton leaves London for Spain February 4 to film the two battle scenes in Cleopatra with Rex Harrison. Joe Mankiewicz will be in charge, and the filming will last four weeks. Elizabeth Taylor, Burton's close companion while in London, will go along.

I don't believe the conjecture that Eddie Fisher will divorce Elizabeth in Las Vegas where he currently has a singing date. It's more likely that Liz will bring the divorce suit in Switzerland, which is her legal address.

Gloria Swanson, off to Florence, Italy, on fashion business, is signing a movie contract. I was with Gloria in a New York taxi recently, and the cab driver was most excited at having her for his passenger. "Gee, Miss Swanson," he said, "my wife won't believe this. I've admired you since I was a little kid." He was gray and in his 60s at least. When we were out of the cab Gloria said to me, "I'm sure if Grandma Moses were to meet me she would say, 'I've wanted to meet you ever since I was a kid.'" For the record, Gloria is still a gorgeous package of a female.

Clint Walker and Jack Warner parted good friends when Clint's contract was up after seven years. Clint has been fairly unhappy at the Warner's studio, because he wanted to do feature films, but a weekly appearance in his Cheyenne series made this almost impossible. Now John Wayne is talking to Walker about a top role in Circus, John's next for Paramount.

Happiest man about town since Dolores Hart cancelled her engagement is Earl Holliman who proposed to Dolores a few years ago. At that time she said No. Earl's earnings from his Wide Country series have put him in the very eligible bachelor category.

Neither Dean Martin nor Carol Burnett like the title of their picture, Who's Been Sleeping in My Bed? and will try to have it changed. Carol has already served notice she will resist all attempts to glamorize her. "I just want to be funny, not beautiful," says Ms. Burnett.

George Gobel and his wife Alice recently celebrated 20 years of marriage. To celebrate George bought Alice a three-carat diamond ring. Her engagement ring 20 years ago was so small, he says, it was a good thing Mrs. Gobel had 20-20 vision.

$331,902

Chest Splits Budget

The Family and Children's Service will receive a recommended allotment of $61,493 from the Greater Victoria Community Chest this year—down more than $4,000 from 1962 grants.

It is the largest allotment recommended by the Chest budget committee in a list totalling $331,902. In 1962, the Chest paid out allotments of $315,555.

NEAR OBJECTIVE

This year's fund drive raised $319,213, which was 97 per cent of the $360,000 objective.

Of the $16,317 increase in recommended allotments, most is absorbed in $10,045 to the Multiple Sclerosis Society, which did not receive assistance last year.

LESS FOR FIVE

Of the 22 other agencies and services receiving allotments, 14 are recommended marginal increases; three get allotments identical to 1962 and five will receive less.

The Citizens Recreation Rooms and Fred Landsburg Sunshine Camp asked for less.

SAME AS 1962

Hardest hit in relation to requested allotment was the St. John Ambulance group. It requested $23,988 but received $12,580, the same as last year when it asked for $20,348.

Family and Children's Service requested $76,239.

FIGURES GIVEN

Other recommended allotments (with actual 1962 payments in brackets):

B.C. Borstal Association $2,205 ($2,100); Boy Scouts $24,765 ($21,110); Boys' Club $12,879 ($12,379); Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society $9,370 ($9,370).

WELFARE COUNCIL

Canadian Mental Health Association $16,753 ($45,112); Canadian National Institute for Blind $15,000 ($15,000); Canadian Welfare Council $2,110 ($2,190); Christmas Bureau $1,000 ($900).

Citizens' Recreation Rooms $1,897 ($2,127); Columbia Coast Mission $1,000 ($1,000); Community Welfare Council $16,284 ($5,875); Fred Landsburg Sunshine Camp $11,024 ($11,194).

SILVER THREADS

John Howard Society $14,256 ($11,119); Muscular Dystrophy Association $3,400 ($3,209); St. Vincent de Paul Society $3,795 ($3,770); Silver Threads Service $13,745 ($13,135).

SPCA $6,492 ($4,907); Victorian Order of Nurses $31,376 ($30,550); Y.M.C.A. $37,924 ($33,611); Y.W.C.A. $22,539 ($22,660).

Goodwill Totem

At work on one of two totem poles destined for California as part of department of recreation and conservation's goodwill "get-acquainted" tour in March, carver Tony Hunt puts finishing touches to pole designed by father, carver Henry Hunt, who fashioned it from designs of Chief Mungo Martin. Kwakwaka'wakw pole depicts Kwunkwukwulgi the thunderbird, Khasa the sea otter and Kwumah the sculpin (bullhead).

Owner, Utterly Baffled

Whatever Happened To Those Murals?

By BOB PETHICK

Where did those centennial murals go?

This is the question asked by Robert Baird, former area governor of toastmasters here, as he searches for two four-foot by eight-foot murals missing from a series he ordered for Victoria's 100th birthday.

FOUR MURALS

Four murals, which depict scenes in Victoria 100 years ago, were painted by Victoria artist Ellice Pryce-Jones on a commission for Mr. Baird. They were used to give a centennial atmosphere to the toastmasters' annual speech contest last year.

Not wanting to board the murals, Mr. Baird lent them to the centennial committee at city hall to be loaned out to societies seeking to create a centennial atmosphere at their meetings. He did however specify he'd like to have them back again when the centennial year was over.

RECENT CHECK

A recent check showed two of the four murals had disappeared and Mr. Baird would like to have them back. His address is 1310 May Street.

Speech Sunday

Murray Gaw, executive director of the John Howard Society, will speak to the Newman Alumni Association at 8 p.m. Sunday in the Terra Room of the Dominion Hotel.

Medical Research Foundation

St. Joseph's Scheme To Help All Victoria

By DON MATHESON

Medical research for the benefit of the people of Victoria is to be stimulated and promoted by a new foundation set up by St. Joseph's Hospital.

Called the Medical Research Foundation of Victoria, it was registered recently as a charitable society.

Sister Mary Ann Celesta, administrator of St. Joseph's, or her representative, is chairman of the board of the new foundation.

Clinical research, where the doctor works directly with his patients, then records and correlates his findings, has been carried on at the hospital for some time.

Scope Broadened

"We have been so impressed with the advances that research has given to patient care we feel it incumbent upon us to offer these larger benefits to the people of Victoria," the Sister Superior added.

The foundation was established, she said, "in order to broaden the scope of these research efforts and to ensure their financial underwriting." It will be supported in its charitable activities by federal research grants and donations and bequests from public-spirited citizens.

"Our experience has shown that the acute general hospital, such as St. Joseph's is an ideal place to carry on this clinical type of research . . . (which) yields results that are available to patients even before publication of the data in scientific journals," said Sister Mary Celesta.

Hospital officials said a bequest of "substantial proportion" is expected to be allocated to the foundation.

Clinical research, or research relating directly to patients, will be first, with basic science research to follow.

Papers of incorporation of the society, filed with the registrar of companies at the Victoria Law Courts building, list these aims:

• To carry on research in medical and cognate sciences and to make the results available to the public.

Directors Named

• To promote and stimulate clinical research in the city of Victoria in the province.

• To collaborate with other societies and such associations, corporations, hospitals and persons as may be like research.

Six persons are the first directors of the foundation, to be officers for one year from the date of incorporation. They are:

Sister Mary Ann Celesta; Dr. John Hopkins, chief of staff, St. Joseph's; Dr. Ralph

E. Adams, medical director, St. Joseph's; Dr. R. L. Wilgins, eye specialist, co-ordinator of research; Dr. J. A. Taylor, deputy minister of health, and Dr. A. B. Sinclair, president, Victoria Medical Society.

Documents of registration also provide that three members of the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons who are leaders of active research teams, or individual researchers, be elected to act as a medical advisory committee.

They are to control research and decide research projects.

Federal Public Works Minister Davie Fulton will be guest of honor at the commissioning of the Victoria-built destroyer-escort Saskatchewan at Esquimalt Feb. 16.

Second of five Mackenzie class escorts to be commissioned into the Royal Canadian Navy, the Saskatchewan will be commissioned at Yarmouth, N.S., where she is being fitted. She was built and launched by Victoria Machinery Depot.

Proficiency Award Won By HMCS Ste. Therese

The frigate HMCS Ste. Therese, of the Pacific Command's Fourth Canadian Escort Squadron, has won the command's sonar proficiency award for 1962. It was announced yesterday.

The ship achieved a mark of 85.6 per cent in the annual contest. Runners-up were HMCS Jonquiere and HMCS Antigonish, each of which received a mark of 83.2 per cent.

Sunday Afternoon

U.S. Destroyer Open to Public

A U.S. Navy destroyer will hold open house in Esquimalt from 1:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday.

USS Everett F. Larson, which will berth at the government jetty by HMCS Naden, is due to arrive in Esquimalt today on a weekend visit. Carrying 14 officers and 230 enlisted men, the ship is a member of the cruise destroyer force, U.S. Pacific Fleet. It was named after the late U.S. Senator Everett F. Larson of the United States Marine Corps Reserve, killed in action at Guadalcanal.

Another visitor to Esquimalt will be the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Swathbiler, which will pay an informal two-day visit beginning Feb. 8. It carries a crew of six officers and 48 enlisted men.

in financial assistance to hospital construction. Mr. Martin spoke at the official opening of a 43-bed psychiatric unit at Royal Jubilee Hospital—the Bay Pavilion.

BETTER RESULTS

"Nowhere in the province is there better cooperation by the municipalities," he added. "With their aid, you're getting results even better than could be expected."

"One of the least of the worries of the people of this area is adequate hospital construction," Mr. Martin continued.

DURING DECADE

He said the province had been able to eliminate 800 tuberculosis beds during the past 10 years when medicine "arrived" at the disease.

"It looks as if something similar is happening or is beginning to occur in mental health."

REMOTE AREA

"It was not many years ago when all we could do for mental patients was to lock them up in a hospital—which was usually located in a relatively remote area—and look after them as best we could," he said.

"This has all been changed, and within a period of 10 years or so."

RETURNS TO HOMES

"Now we have our mental hospitals gradually reducing the numbers of patients because we treat them and return them to their homes," Mr. Martin said.

"We are developing community-based psychiatric services because it now is possible to treat mental illness within our home community, thereby realizing a multitude of advantages."

The newly-expanded pavilion was representative of this modern approach to treatment of mental illness, he said.

LOOK TO FUTURE

The history of the expansion of the pavilion, which started with eight beds in 1947, was proof of the value such a unit had in the community, he added.

It was also indicative of the way mental disorders and emotional illness would be treated in the future.

"Complementing such facilities will be those expanding programs carried by the provincial mental health services branch which will also be developed on a regional basis for exactly the same reasons," he said.

MEET A NEED

He said he was pleased to see how the addition had been financed "because it is representative of community co-operation to meet a need."

Provincial and federal governments had made their usual contributions, while the municipalities of Oak Bay, Esquimalt, and Saanich and the city of Victoria shared with the hospital board of directors the remainder.

Following opening ceremonies, the invited guests toured the building.

Chinchilla Show In Sidney Soon

More than 200 entries are expected at the show which will feature displays of pelts as well as live animals.

Island Starts Tourist Hunt

'Most Important' Meeting Forms Publicity Group

By HARVEY SHEPHERD

NANAIMO—A new Vancouver Island tourist publicity organization was born yesterday at what a B.C. cabinet minister called the most important tourist meeting ever held on the Island. (See also Page 7.)

At a meeting which—rather to the surprise of some delegates—was marked by a spirit of co-operation and an absence of heated argument, more than 70 delegates from throughout the Island chose a 12-man board of directors for the new Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau.

Delegates heard Donald Cunliffe of Nanaimo, a director of the new organization, describe it as frankly slanted toward the B.C. government program of matching grants for tourist publicity—and heard provincial Recreation Minister Earle Westwood say his department will "give you all the support in the world."

EARLE WESTWOOD

He said in an interview the government would match dollar for dollar, as much money as the organization can raise for external tourist publicity, whether or not the sum exceeds the $30,000 now allocated by the government for the area served by the organization.

Most other areas of B.C. are not raising as much as the government has offered them, he explained. Vancouver Island all but did last year.

Delegates voted to have the new organization take over from Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau the job of publicizing Vancouver Island as soon as directors of the new group feel they are ready.

Delegates were urged by the president of the Victoria and Island Bureau, Victoria Ald. Austin Curtis and others, to be patient in the organization's founding stages and leave some problems to be ironed out by directors later.

Mr. Cunliffe, president of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island, said the organization will have the twofold aim of raising money for tourist publicity and carrying on an advertising campaign for Zone A of B.C. which will qualify for the matching grant.

Stanley Booker, president of the new Visitors Services Association, a Vancouver Island tourist industry organization, said his group plans to raise money for the bureau and to more tightly unite the Island.

He said some of its funds will likely be diverted to support organizations helping care for tourists once they have reached individual communities.

Eleven directors were chosen to represent various regions in Zone A, and Mr. Cunliffe was chosen to represent the Island as a whole. The other 11:

Even Horse Helped

Distress calls from all over B.C. converge on this nerve core at Reserve Co-ordination Centre in Vancouver, visited by Colonist reporter yesterday. Centre handled 783 calls for help in 1962, dispatched aircraft, crashboats, ships, parachute teams and even a taxicab and horse to aid persons in distress.

Colombian Mountain Cathedral of Salt

BOGOTA (AP)—Thousands of Colombians attend mass in one of the most unusual cathedrals in the world—a cathedral hewn out of a mountain of salt.

This salt cathedral is located about 30 miles from Bogota at Zipaquira. It measures about 1 1/2 times the length of a football field. Its arches soar 75 feet. It holds 8,000 persons and it takes a circle of 20 persons to encompass each of its six mammoth pillars.

The area where the cathedral is located has the richest and most colorful deposits in the continent. When the Spanish conquerors reached the country 400 years ago, they found the natives engaged in a flourishing industry trading salt they mined from the mountain for gold, emeralds, food, cloth and skins.

Work on the cathedral was started in 1950 and completed four years later. The mine has four levels and the cathedral was built on the second level. Builders had to blast out the two-story church. The cathedral consists of four naves. The principal one terminates at the high altar behind which there is a depiction of Calvary with an enormous 77-foot wood cross towering over the altar.

The mine belongs to the government. Mr. Goyette was a descendant of well-known pioneer Richard Cheesman. Royal Oak was named after the Cheesman farm in England.

Mr. Goyette for many years farmed the family property at 645 Goyette until a fire in 1933 razed most of the farm. He then went to work for Saanich municipality where he was employed for 25 years until his retirement.

Mr. Goyette, a member of St. Michael's Church, helped build the original structure. He leaves his wife, Annie Lena, formerly Grunow, at home. 645 Goyette has two sons, Arnold Stanley and Allen Pontent; a daughter, Mrs. Peter Scherer (Shirley) Ozida Anstall, one sister, Orilla Sangster, and 11 grandchildren, all of Victoria.

She is survived by one sister, Sister Mary Ethel, and two brothers, Henry Poncelet of Ashcroft and Joseph Poncelet of North Kamloops. Requiem mass will be sung at St. Ann's Academy chapel at 8:30 a.m. Monday.

E. S. Goyette Of Saanich Dies at 69

Saanich resident Ernest Stanley Goyette, descendant of a family that arrived here in 1849, died yesterday. He was 69.

Mr. Goyette was a descendant of well-known pioneer Richard Cheesman. Royal Oak was named after the Cheesman farm in England.

THE VOICE OF ONE

By REV. DR. FRANK S. MORLEY

Beware, all receivers of Christmas gifts! You may have to give them back. A news report says that Somerset Maugham is trying to recover several million dollars of gifts from his disowned daughter. According to French law a gift may be reclaimed when the donee is ungrateful.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Why not tell the divorced man's side of the story. There is one, whether you know it or not.

I walked out on my wife because she was a nagging, sloppy, stupid battle-axe. I left the car, the paid-for home and everything in it, including my bankbook with $3,000. We had an 11-year-old daughter and I wanted to be as fair as possible.

My wife has had two miserable marriages since ours. Now she is living with a man but she says this is perfectly all right because "nobody knows." Nobody except our daughter, that is.

I send support money for the girl every two weeks without fail. It goes on my wife's back and I can't do one thing about it. When I get my daughter for the day I take her downtown to buy clothing because her mother doesn't spend a dime on her.

How did I get into this fix? Simple. My wife's lawyer was smarter than mine. — THE OTHER SIDE

Dear Other Side: There are more than two lawyers in this world. Get a third one and prove this woman is an unfit mother. It should not be difficult if what you say in your letter is reasonably accurate. The law doesn't work by itself. It offers the mechanics of justice, but people have to help.

Dear Ann Landers: That letter from the kid who wanted to quit school in the 10th grade to take a job for $98 a week could have been written by me.

I had a chance to make "big money," too. A couple of my buddies told me I was crazy to waste time in school when I could be out making a lot of dough. So I quit in my junior year to work in a mill for $91 a week. It was more money than my dad made.

For two whole months I was on top of the world. Then business got slow and I was laid off. I went from one place to another looking for a job. The

Ballroom

Renovations Delight Ottawa Chatelaine

By EDNA BLAKELY

OTTAWA (CP)—In her own words, the wife of the Governor-General is "absolutely delighted" with the renovations to the spacious ballroom at Government House.

Mme. Vanier watched with great interest as the renovations—the first since 1939—were undertaken at the official residence of the Governor-General.

The work was completed more than a month ago and the newly decorated room is once again being used for investitures and the presentation of credentials by foreign ambassadors.

This is also the room where state dinners and balls are held. The traditional state dinner and reception on the eve of the opening of Parliament had been cancelled last September because of the renovation project.

GREY AND GOLD
The old cream walls, which had darkened with age, have been painted a pearl grey and the vaulted ceiling now is trimmed with gold. The softly patterned beige rug with its blue border almost covers the entire floor, which measures 40 by 80 feet. It was specially woven in Scotland because it was too large to be produced on Canadian looms.

The chairs, formerly dark red, have been re-covered with grey-blue silk damask from Florence, and their legs have been gilded.

The draperies on the eight floor-to-ceiling windows are in Italian gold silk damask.

A large portrait of Queen Victoria, a copy of an oil by Sir William Hayter—hangs on the only solid wall in the room. It now is the only picture in the ballroom, the six portraits there earlier HAVING been placed elsewhere in the 60-room residence.

Dominating feature of the ballroom is a 12,500-crystal chandelier presented to Canada by the British government in 1946. This was dismantled and cleaned during the renovations.

Mr. and Mrs. Chapman Married in Alberni

Margaret Jane Hopwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hopwood, Alberni, became the bride recently of Mr. Theodore Bruce Chapman, son of Rev. and Mrs. T. W. Chapman, Kiwanis Way, Victoria. The double ring ceremony was conducted by Mr. James Cochrane Sr. of Vancouver in Helen Street Gospel Hall, Alberni. Miss Jeanne Inrig of Victoria was organist.

The bride wore a ballerina length gown of white alençon lace and net, styled with lily-point sleeves. Her bouquet was a cascade of pale pink sweet-heart roses with white feathered chrysanthemums. A headpiece of white brocade held her fingertip net veil.

PINK VELVET

Maid of honor, Miss Christine Broomfield of Victoria, was in a dark pink velvet dress and carried a matching velvet muff with white chrysanthemums. Her headpiece was white maribou and feathers.

Miss Cheryl Chapman, the groom's sister, chose a similar ensemble.

Mr. Brian Chapman was best man for his brother and Mr. Jim MacDuff and Mr. Lyle Hopwood ushered guests.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. A three-tiered wedding cake, made by the bride's mother, was decorated with pink rosebuds and topped with a crown of lily-of-the-valley.

Leaving for a honeymoon on the island, the new Mrs. Chapman changed to a gold wool crepe skirt, gold and magenta top and plum colored cashmere coat. Her accessories were beige and gold chrysanthemums were in the corsage. The couple will make their home at 2947 Cedar Hill Road, Victoria.

Mr. Donald Taylor was best man. Later that afternoon the couple left by plane for a honeymoon in Hawaii.

Pink Roses and Candles Decorate

Mrs. John G. Skilling entertained at a cup and saucer shower recently in her Westwood Road home for Miss Sharon Malcolm, who is to be married on January 26. Pink roses flanked with pink candles centred the refreshment table. Guests were Mrs. D. C. Stephenson, Miss Malcolm's mother, Mrs. R. Woodcock, Mrs. P. Rae, Mrs. M. Russell, Mrs. C. Seyfort, Mrs. B. Rounding, Mrs. C. Lum, Mrs. R. Travis, Mrs. G. P. Hughes, Mrs. G. Pynn, Mrs. W. Garner and Mrs. R. Malcolm.

Mrs. Allen Noble Grand

An impressive ceremony took place recently when officers of Colfax Rebekah Lodge No. 1, IOOF, were installed for the coming year. Mrs. E. Merton, district deputy president, presiding officer, was assisted by her deputies, Mrs. A. Long, Mrs. R. W. Green, Mrs. G. R. Brown, Mrs. A. McCabe, Mrs. E. Keiser, Mrs. T. H. McAllister, Mrs. P. W. Smoothy, Mrs. J. R. Brandon, Mrs. G. Waddell was soloist and Mrs. W. J. Gower, assembly musician, accompanied.

Elected officers are: Mrs. W. Allen, noble grand; Mrs. S. Worboys, vice grand; Mrs. F. Wilson, recording secretary; Mrs. H. Silver, financial secretary and Mrs. A. Shipp, treasurer.

Mr. E. Merton, Mr. E. Collett, Mr. L. Healy, Mr. W. Silver and Mr. P. Thompson were exalted.

Appointed officers were Mrs. R. E. Merry, Mrs. L. Rossiter, Mrs. W. A. Kelly, Mrs. T. S. Spillbury, Miss C. Stevenson, Mrs. J. J. Wright, Mrs. R. W. Green, Mrs. K. Nelson, Mrs. J. Wilson, Mrs. E. Collett and Mrs. G. Daniels.

Mrs. G. Fairbairn, retiring noble grand, was presented with a gift from her staff. Installing staff was gowning in pastel colored formal and the officers in white gowns. Each member was presented with a red rose corsage. President of the International Association of Rebekah Assemblies has chosen the red rose as flower of the year.

Boy Gets Year For Theft

A sentence of one year of finite and four months indefinite in the young offenders unit at Oakalla was imposed by Magistrate William Oatley on 17-year-old Harry M. Smith, who pleaded guilty in city magistrate's court yesterday to breaking, entering and theft.

The magistrate first heard a plea by the boy's defence counsel, Rodney Bevan that he (the defence counsel), Charles A. Gibbard, the boy's principal at Oak Bay Senior High School and William S. Bourque, 322 Goldstream, the boy's uncle, act as a committee to guide the boy.

In passing sentence the magistrate said he did not believe a suspended sentence would be in the boy's or the community's best interest.

The three men who volunteered to help the boy could be of great service to him when he was released from custody, the magistrate said. Smith pleaded guilty to breaking and entering Continental Home Supply, 851 Johnson, Dec. 13 and stealing $51 in cash, wallets, perfume, a radio and jewelry.

Ronald Lloyd, 3275 Millgrove, charged with breaking, entering and theft and being in possession of stolen goods over $50 entered a plea of not guilty on both counts and elected trial by magistrate.

He will appear again Jan. 21 when date for the trial will be fixed.

David F. Chesworth, 2013 Oak Bay Avenue, was fined a total of $275 for traffic offences. Fines ran to $100 for being a minor without insurance; $100 for driving while under suspension, and $75 for careless driving.

Lesage Demands Action

'Last Chance' For Canada To Keep Quebec

Mourning

Deaths of all political hues last night mourned death of Labor party leader Hugh Gault, 56, from mysterious virus. Deputy leader George Brown, 48, takes over until successor is named formally. See story on Page 3.—(AP Photofax)

John D Rejects Idea of Break

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker Thursday fully rejected suggestions that Quebec might break away from Canada unless immediate action is taken to meet current French Canadian grievances.

At the same time, he pledged an all-out effort by his Conservative government to strengthen the nation's "heart strings" through federal-provincial co-operation.

NOT DISINTEGRATING

"The idea that Canada is about to disintegrate has no place in my thinking or my associates' in the cabinet today," he said. "I'm not a defeatist, I don't preach the doctrine that our races can't get together."

"I say there cannot be domination by one province over another—there can only be equal rights for all within the constitution."

The prime minister made his major statement on national unity before some 2,000 cheering supporters at the Conservative Party's annual meeting, less than 24 hours after Quebec Premier Lesage and provincial opposition leader Daniel Johnson had agreed that "the hour of last chance" was approaching as far as keeping Quebec in confederation was concerned.

Mr. Diefenbaker said his government during the past six years had taken several steps to strengthen national unity, including installation of simultaneous translation in the House of Commons, passage of a Canadian Bill of Rights and a consistent, if yet unsuccessful, effort to "repatriate" the Canadian constitution.

Quebec in confederation was concerned.

Mr. Diefenbaker said his government during the past six years had taken several steps to strengthen national unity, including installation of simultaneous translation in the House of Commons, passage of a Canadian Bill of Rights and a consistent, if yet unsuccessful, effort to "repatriate" the Canadian constitution.

The next move, he said, was a federal-provincial conference to reconsider the constitutional issue as well as creation of an official Canadian flag and national anthem. Such a conference was forecast in the throne speech opening the current 25th Parliament, but no date has been set for it.

"You can't do these things by law or compulsion," Diefenbaker said. "They can only be done through co-operation and that is what we intend to do."

'This Key Is Not Only to a Building But the Whole Gordon Head Campus'

VICTORIA WINS ITS UNIVERSITY

Strange, Savage War

A dramatic series of stories on "the forgotten war" being fought against communism in Southeast Asia begins unfolding in The Daily Colonist Sunday morning. Rev. J. A. G. Worthington of The Telegram News Service tells about the strange, savage war in South Vietnam against a deadly enemy who kills by stealth and surprise and then melts into the jungles and paddies.

Envoy Recalled

Tunisia Algeria At Odds

TUNIS (AP)—President Habib Bourguiba Friday called back his ambassador from Algeria and hurled insults at Algerian Premier Ahmed Ben Bella.

In what appeared to be the start of a new crisis in turbulent North Africa, the Tunisian leader charged Algeria with helping to foment a recent plot against his life.

NO BREAK OFF

Thus far, no break-off of diplomatic relations has been announced but negotiations in Algeria on the traffic of persons and goods across the frontier were halted.

In Tunis, Bourguiba implied in a public speech that Ben Bella was involved in anti-Tunisian activity, adding "but Ben Bella should not be confused with the rest of Algerians who are our brothers."

Law Due Soon Grants Pledged

By IAN STREET

Legislation to give Victoria College full university status will be introduced at the next session of the B.C. House which opens Thursday, Premier Bennett indicated yesterday.

The premier told guests attending the formal opening of the first new building on the Gordon Head campus it was time the province had two universities, "each with a personality of its own."

He stressed, however, the need for continued co-operation between UBC and the fledgling Victoria University, adding "competition should exist in seeking higher standards, not between faculties."

'Surprise' Grants

Premier Bennett also disclosed that for the first time this year Victoria University will receive a capital grant in addition to the annual matching grant of $300,000. He did not say how much.

The premier's announcements came as a surprise, particularly in view of the imminence of next week's Throne Speech.

He informed reporters after the ceremonies it was hoped "with co-operation" of everyone concerned to introduce and pass necessary legislation at the coming session.

Next step will probably take the form of a round-table conference between authorities at UBC and local university officials to iron out details of the changes required in both acts.

Premier Bennett said in his address: "I hope that, when Victoria University is established by all the necessary acts of the legislature, Judge J. B. Clearihue will become the first chancellor."

Clearihue Hopes

Judge Clearihue, chairman of Victoria College Council for 17 years and leader of the fight for an independent degree-granting university, earlier accepted a silver key to the classroom block that bears his name.

"It is my only hope that this building very soon will become part of the University of Victoria," he said.

As the audience applauded the end of the premier's speech

Space Bugs May 'Kill' Earth

Deadly Round Trip?

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A scientist warned yesterday that it is conceivable that microscopic life forms from another planet could cling to returning spacecraft and destroy life on Earth.

Dr. Solomon Golumb of California Institute of Technology said a life form inadvertently imported to Earth might have the capability of successfully competing with Earth forms for the basic raw materials of life.

"There's been a great deal of thought given to preventing contamination of the moon and planets during visits by Earth space vehicles, but an even greater problem entirely overlooked is what about microscopic organisms carried to the Earth on return flights."

Golumb, who spoke at the closing day session of the ninth annual American Astronautical Society, said there is little reason to believe that alien life forms would be more efficient than Earth forms in the struggle for survival, but that it is a potential danger that must be recognized.

Dr. Fred Whipple, vice-president of the society and director of Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, voiced a grim possibility that a meteoroid hitting Earth could trigger a nuclear war.

"There is no way I know of tracking a meteor," he said. "There is no advance notice of one crashing to earth. No one knows when the next one will hit."

10-Day Reprieve Won for Britain

BRUSSELS (Reuters)—Diplomatic efforts to save negotiations on British membership in the European Common Market Friday won a 10-day breathing space.

After a day during which France's demand for an immediate suspension of the talks was opposed by its five market partners, a ministerial session of the Six decided to take up the issue again Jan. 28.

It was expected but not decided that the British would meet again with the Six immediately after that.

REAL PRESSURE

The day also produced the first outward signs of real pressure by West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg to back up their desire for full British membership and get Paris to reverse its "thumbs down" policy on this.

West German sources said Dutch Foreign Minister Joseph Luns told the French that, if negotiations with Britain were broken off, he could not guarantee that the Dutch Parliament would ratify the agreement associating France's former territory of Algeria with the market.

WANT BRITAIN

The sources added that the same held true for West Germany.

British chief negotiator Edward Heath said before leaving for London that the five-day session just ended had shown how strongly the Five wanted Britain to join the market.

No Soft Line

Communist Chinese delegate Wu Hsiu-chuan yesterday rejected Soviet Premier Khrushchev's "soft line" communism plea in Berlin and issued a declaration of independence within the Communist world. Peking Radio later broadcast his speech in Japanese and English. (See story, page 30.)

Britain Starts On Polaris Subs

LONDON (Reuters)—The defense ministry said Friday Britain will start preliminary design work on Polaris submarines.

These nuclear submarines will carry the Polaris missiles which Britain will get from the U.S. in place of the abandoned Skybolt missile.

Chinese Out India Told

TOKYO (AP)—Foreign Minister Chen Yi of Red China said Friday Chinese troops have completed withdrawal on the Himalayan frontier and expressed hope India "will return to the conference table at an early date."

Power Cuts Hit Central London

LONDON (Reuters)—Widespread power cuts hit central London Friday night as shivering Britons battled snow, ice and bitter cold.

U.K. in Market —After de Gaulle

PARIS (Reuters)—President de Gaulle has told a group of French parliamentarians Britain will join the Common Market eventually—but that by that time he probably will no longer be in power. Le Monde says.

The newspaper quotes de Gaulle as saying: "Either the English will sign or they will leave Brussels. Then they will think it over. They will enter the Common Market one day but no doubt I will no longer be there."

Crosswalk at Courtenay Suggested for Children

COURTENAY School trustees here are asking for a crosswalk at the Ryan Anderson Road intersection to protect children who disembark from the school bus about the time heavy traffic starts to flow from the airport.

Trustees are also seeking permission by the department of education to add two rooms to the four-room school now under construction at Arden. One room is needed now and another will be required by September. The board will also seek departmental views on the addition of an activity room now because it would be more economical now the contractor is at the site than it will be in a year or two.

Bids on the schools at Arden and Balmora—identical buildings—had to be revised when low bids were far too high. In addition to the revision, rooms were eliminated. Harrison and Longland, low bidder on Arden, revised the bid after heating plant and other changes were made, and now Flannery Construction is studying the changes to decide if its low bid on Balmora can be revised.

New 'Visitor' Group Picks Executives

NANAIMO—Newly-formed Visitor Services Association members, meeting in the Malaspina Hotel Friday elected

Stanley Booker, Victoria, chairman; A. Brown, Qualicum, co-chairman; F. Erickson, Sooke, secretary-treasurer; P. H. Peterson, Quadra Island, R. Eaton, Sidney, Miss E. Sowther, Port Alberni, and W. Shepherd, Nanaimo, directors.

It was tentatively decided to use 80 per cent of the money collected for external advertising and 20 per cent for local advertising or internal projects.

A general per capita charge of 25 cents per person is to be the basis of the amount expected from each district.

It was recommended closest cooperation be maintained with the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau.

Canadian Nation 'Main Objective Of Film Board'

NANAIMO—Paschal O'Toole of the Victoria Office, National Film Board, told the Rotary Club Friday the main objective of the film board is to form a Canadian nation spiritually or, in the broader sense of the word, culturally.

"We have so many distinct habits and customs, without a joint ethnic force, the board hopes—by capturing every aspect and facade and weaving them into a cultural pattern—we will emerge not as a cultural satellite of the U.S. but as a unified Canada," he said.

Documentaries produced by the board have won 568 international awards, and the New York Times said the Canadian National Film Board is a giant in the documentary industry, he said.

John Getgood of Yellow Point received an award for his documentary about his cat and a neighbor's dog.

Burns Fete Slated

LADYSMITH—Skirt of the pipes by Pat Kenny, Nanaimo Pipe Band, will herald the arrival of the haggis borne by Malcolm Mackenzie, at the local Burns Club's annual supper, concert and dance marking the 204th anniversary of Scotland's ploughman poet, Robert Burns.

The event will be held in Native Sons Hall Jan. 26 at 7:30 p.m. President William Hallinan, as master of ceremonies will propose the toast to the Queen. Vice-president Allan McDonald will propose the toast to the immortal memory, which will be replied by Opposition Leader Robert Strachan.

David Morrison will give the Selkirk grace; Tom Davidson will toast the "ladies," and his wife, Grace, will reply.

Jack Rodger, club member for more than 47 years, will address the haggis in a recitation of the poem To a Haggis, and "wi ready sleight" will cut the pudding to start supper.

Concert artists are Miss Terry Hill, M. Mackenzie, A. McDonald, D. Morrison and others, accompanied by Mrs. J. B. Clack. Two home ladies, Heather and Yolande McDonald will give an exhibition of highland dancing to the piping of Pat Kenny.

Festival Of Films Planned?

NANAIMO—Nanaimo Rotary Club and other organizations, including drama groups, may sponsor a film exhibition or a film festival in this city this year, it has been rumored.

Magistrate Prefers To Bar Drivers

NANAIMO—Magistrate Lionel Beevor Potts said in police court Friday: "Fines for impaired driving are on the increase."

"Some courts jump the lines considerably but not the suspensions," he said. "I do not believe in that. A suspension is a penalty with a particular effect."

The magistrate sentenced Samuel John Adair to three months in Okalla and prohibited him from driving anywhere in Canada for three years.

Kenneth Brian Inch, convicted of impaired driving, was fined $175, and his licence was suspended for one month after he had asked for minimum suspension being a salesman.

Hospital Start in 1964?

DUNCAN—Cowichan hospital board chairman Claude Green said yesterday he is confident construction of the $3,250,000 Cowichan district hospital should be started by this time next year and it will be open by fall of 1965. Mr. Green's comment followed the go-ahead signal from Health Minister Martin Thursday.

The hospital will be situated on several acres of land at Gibbins Road. Architects and consultants are preparing work drawings, and tenders will be called this fall, Mr. Green said.

Tofino—Tofino lifeboat arrived Friday with a woman on a stretcher from a mining camp about 20 nautical miles from here. The woman, whose name is being withheld, was taken to Tofino General Hospital.

LADYSMITH—Local man Kauko Laakso, who pleaded guilty to being in care and control of a motor vehicle while impaired, lost his driver's licence for one year and paid $100 in police court. Leonard Ryan of Kokalah pleaded guilty to consuming liquor in a public place and was fined $50.

DUNCAN—Shawnigan Lake resident V. R. Cragg, who is charged with arson, will be tried in assize court in early spring at Nanaimo. He appeared first here in police court Dec. 13, elected to be tried by a judge and jury, and appeared for preliminary hearing yesterday. He is free on $1,000 bail. Cragg is accused of having set fire Nov. 23 to a private dwelling in which he was living. The house was destroyed.

GANGEN—Elijah Pollard, a resident of Pender Island for 63 years, recently died in Lady Minto Hospital at 88. He is survived by his wife, Evelyn Lilian, two sons, Norman of Port Coquitlam; Robin, and one daughter, Mrs. Diana Began, both of Pender Island, and four grandchildren. Funeral rites will be held at 1:30 p.m. today in St. Peter's Anglican Church in Port Washington.

NANAIMO—Dr. Joseph Boulding, new Nanaimo psychiatrist, will be guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Nanaimo branch, Canadian Mental Health Association at the central Vancouver Island health clinic at 8 p.m. Jan. 23.

COURTENAY—A deer on a highway was ruled responsible for an accident in which Paul Germunstad was killed Sept. 21. A coroner's jury ruled the accident occurred when a car driven by Peter Bowland swerved to avoid the deer and struck the Germunstad car head on. The accident occurred just north of Royston on the Island Highway.

$331,902

Chest Splits Budget

The Family and Children's Service will receive a recommended allotment of $61,493 from the Greater Victoria Community Chest this year—down more than $8,000 from 1962 grants.

It is the largest allotment recommended by the Chest budget committee in a list totalling $331,902. In 1962, the Chest paid out allotments of $315,555.

NEAR OBJECTIVE

This year's fund drive raised $349,213, which was 97 per cent of the $360,000 objective.

Of the $16,317 increase in recommended allotments, most is absorbed in $10,043 to the Multiple Sclerosis Society, which did not receive assistance last year.

LESS FOR FIVE

Of the 22 other agencies and services receiving allotments, 14 are recommended marginal increases; three get allotments identical to 1962 and five will receive less.

The Citizens Recreation Rooms and Fred Landsburg Sunshine Camp asked for less.

NAME AS 1962

Harvest hit in relation to request and allotment was the St. John Ambulance group. It requested $23,988 but received $12,300, the same as last year when it asked for $20,348.

Family and Children's Service requested $76,239. The $61,493 allotment represents 12.4 per cent of the estimated total budget of $49,418.

FIGURES GIVEN

Other recommended allotments (with actual 1962 payments in brackets):

B.C. Borstal Association $2,205 ($2,100); Boy Scouts $24,765 ($21,110); Boys' Club $12,879 ($12,379); Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society $39,370 ($39,370).

WELFARE COUNCIL

Canadian Mental Health Association $16,753 ($15,112); Canadian National Institute for Blind $15,000 ($15,000); Canadian Welfare Council $2,110 ($2,190); Christmas Bureau $1,000 ($900); Citizens Recreation Rooms $1,887 ($2,127); Columbia Coast Mission $1,000 ($1,000); Community Welfare Council $16,281 ($5,875); Fred Landsburg Sunshine Camp $11,024 ($11,194).

SILVER THREADS

John Howard Society $14,256 ($11,119); Muscular Dystrophy Association $3,400 ($3,200); St. Vincent de Paul Society $1,795 ($2,700); Silver Threads Service $13,745 ($13,133).

SIUCA $6,452 ($1,907); Victorian Order of Nurses $31,376 ($30,580); YWCA $31,924 ($33,611); YWCA $22,539 ($22,600).

Goodwill Totem

At work on one of two totem poles destined for California as part of department of recreation and conservation's goodwill "get-acquainted" tour in March, carver Tony Hunt puts finishing touches to pole designed by father, carver Henry Hunt, who fashioned it from designs of Chief Mungo Martin. Kwakiutl pole depicts Kwunkwulwigit the thunderbird, Khassa the sea otter and Kwumah the sculpin (bullhead).

Whatever Happened To Those Murals?

By BOB PETHICK

Where did those centennial murals go?

This is the question asked by Robert Baird, former area governor of toastmasters here, as he searches for two four-foot by eight-foot murals missing from a set he ordered for Victoria's 100th birthday.

FOUR MURALS

Four murals, which depict scenes in Victoria 100 years ago, were painted by Victoria artist Elsie Pryce-Jones on a commission for Mr. Baird. They were used to give a centennial atmosphere to the toastmasters' annual speech contest last year.

Not wanting to board the murals, Mr. Baird lent them to the centennial committee at city hall to be loaned out to societies seeking to create a centennial atmosphere at their meetings. He did not, however, specify he'd like to have them back again when the centennial year was over.

RECENT CHECK

A recent check showed two of the four murals had disappeared, and Mr. Baird would like to have them back.

His address is 1210 May Street.

Speakers to Meet

The Capital City Speakers' Group will meet in the city hall council chambers at 6 p.m. Monday.

More than 200 entries are expected at the show which will feature displays of pelts as well as live animals.

'Most Important' Meeting Ever

Entire Island Unites In Search for Tourists

By HARVEY SHEPHERD

NANAIMO—A new Vancouver Island tourist publicity organization was born yesterday at what a B.C. cabinet minister called the most important tourist meeting ever held on the island. (See also Page 7.)

At a meeting which—rather to the surprise of some delegates—was marked by a spirit of co-operation and an absence of heated argument, more than 70 delegates from throughout the island chose a 12-man board of directors for the new Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau.

FRANKLY SLANTED

Delegates heard Donald Cunliffe of Nanaimo, a director of the new organization, describe it as frankly slanted toward the B.C. government program of matching grants for tourist publicity—and heard provincial Recreation Minister Earle Westwood say his department will "give you all the support in the world."

He told the new organization: "If you advertise Vancouver Island like they advertise Hawaii, you just can't lose."

Most other areas of B.C. are not raising as much as the government has offered them, he explained—Vancouver Island all but did last year.

WHEN READY

Delegates voted to have the new organization take over from Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau the job of publicizing Vancouver Island as soon as directors of the new group feel they are ready.

Delegates were urged by the president of the Victoria and Island bureau, Victoria Ald, Austin Curtis and others, to be patient in the organization's founding stages and leave some problems to be ironed out by directors later.

TWOFOLD AIM

Mr. Cunliffe, president of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island, said the organization will have the twofold aim of raising money for tourist publicity and carrying on an advertising campaign for Zone A of B.C. which will qualify for the matching grant.

Stanley Booker, president of the new Visitors Services Association, a Vancouver Island tourist industry organization, said his group plans to raise money for the bureau and to more tightly unite the island.

ONCE REACHED

He said some of its funds will likely be diverted to support organizations helping care for tourists once they have reached individual communities.

OTHERS NAMED

Village commissioner Peter Lauren of Campbell River; village commission chairman William Henderson of Cumberland; Ald. Leslie Hammer of Port Alberni; Mrs. Mary Sutcliffe of Parksville; Ald. John Cook of Nanaimo; Reece Donald Morton of North Cowichan; C. R. Horel of Salt Spring Island; Mayor R. B. Wilson of Victoria; Coun. Walter Dods-worth of Oak Bay; Miss Evelyn Packham of Point No Point, and Jim Eaton of Sidney.

Truck Association

Loggers Pick Baikie

VANCOUVER — Wallace Baikie of Campbell River has been re-elected president and W. D. Moore of Winter Harbor re-elected vice-president of the B.C. Truck Loggers' Association. R. Melpass of Nanaimo is immediate past president.

OTHERS CHOSEN

Directors elected at the association's annual convention included O. W. Rowman of Sardis, J. W. Drenka of Squamish, L. F. Pretty of Harrison Mills, B. E. Welch of Qualicum, Ted Osborne of Sooke and L. S. Eckardt, G. A. Flavell, George MacBryer, D. M. MacKenzie, E. J. Rionan and Allen Tretheway, all of Vancouver.

DUNCAN — Former member of the Pacific Coast Rangers during the Second World War Hugh Robert Cavin died at the King's Daughters' Hospital Thursday at 55.

He was born here and educated at Cowichan Station and Cobble Hill.

He was a dockery engineer for many years in the logging industry, and for the past six years worked for the King's Daughters' Hospital. Funeral services will be held at Mill Bay United Church at 2 p.m. Monday.

Duncan Meeting Called

IWA Leaders Oppose Hours Changes

DUNCAN—Local IWA officials say they are opposed to new regulations in the B.C. Hours of Work Act, and union members here will be asked to express their opinion at the next general meeting Jan. 27.

Local president Percy Clements said the new regulations will affect the 44-hour week, if abused by employers in the logging industry—so "we oppose them on the grounds of existing unemployment and the doubling-up on jobs."

Mr. Clements said certain job categories in the logging industry, according to the old regulations, could be asked to exceed the 44-hour week.

Now the list of categories has been enlarged and the wording of others changed.

"We still recognize certain jobs have to be done on weekends and emergency operations now and again have to be carried out, but above that we are strictly against more working hours," said Mr. Clements.

Observers in Victoria said the Princess of Nanaimo would seem to be the only Princess ship available.

Princess to Halifax?

CPR Silent On Ship Shift

CPR officials have declined comment on speculation the CPR ferry Princess of Nanaimo is headed for the eastern Maritimes.

A Canadian Press report from St. John, N.B., quoted a CPR official as saying the ship is considering replacing the ferry Princess Helene which plies between St. John and Digby, N.S. The report said it was rumored the Helene could be replaced by a B.C. Princess ship.

Observers in Victoria said the Princess of Nanaimo would seem to be the only Princess ship available.

Cowichan Discussion

Write Flood Control Plan Southend Citizens Urged

NORTH COWICHAN—About 25 people at a recent meeting of the Southend Taxpayers' Association discussed three major problems—flood prevention on Beverley Street, sewage in the Sherman Road area and domestic water in the Quamichan Lake area.

Member John Cannon said realization of a complete flood control in the entire area would require a number of years.

CONSTANT THREAT

It was suggested North Cowichan council be asked to relieve the constant flood threat in the Alexander subdivision where Beverley Street is located.

NOT NECESSARILY

Association secretary Robert Waddy said the plan, which was recommended by a flood control expert, could be covered by an approximate $3,000.

Municipal clerk A. Vandecasteyen said council has set aside a total of $5,000 for flood control but not necessarily for any one of the smaller areas.

Ratepayers here think that, with the help from the municipality, its engineer and the heavy equipment, it will be possible to curb the flood threat in the Alexander subdivision.

DEEP CONCERN

North Cowichan Coun. Mrs. Elaine Doherty said she is deeply concerned about the situation and advised the taxpayers to work out a brief to be presented by a delegation.

Claude Green explained the lack of proper sewage facilities in the Sherman Road area and said a few years ago a plebiscite for a sewage disposal plant in that area was defeated by a large majority as too costly.

SERVED BY LAGOON

It would be unnecessary to have three different systems when the entire population here of 10,000 could be served by the Duncan sewage lagoon, Mr. Green said.

The need for domestic water in the Quamichan Lake area will soon be studied by another committee under the chairmanship of former association president F. E. Blanc.

North Cowichan fire chief Pat Clarkson spoke strongly in favor of residents on Maple Bay and Herd roads who wish to be included in the Southend fire protection district.

Even Horse Helped

Distress calls from all over B.C. converge on this nerve core at Reserve Co-ordination Centre in Vancouver, visited by Colonist reporters yesterday. Centre handled 783 calls for help in 1962, dispatched aircraft, fireboats, ships, parachute teams and even a taxicab and horse to aid persons in distress.

Speech Sunday

Murray Gaw, executive director of the John Howard Society, will speak to the Newnan Alumni Association at 8 p.m. Sunday in the Terra Cotta Room of the Dominion Hotel.

Hospital Aids All Victoria

Medical Research Foundation St. Joseph's Plan

By DON MATHESON

Medical research for the benefit of the people of Victoria is to be stimulated and promoted by a new foundation set up by St. Joseph's Hospital.

Called the Medical Research Foundation of Victoria, it was registered recently as a charitable society.

Sister Mary Ann Celesta, administrator of St. Joseph's, or her designate, is chairman of the board of the new foundation.

Clinical research, where the doctor works directly with his patients, then records and correlates his findings, has been carried on at the hospital for some time.

"Our experience has shown that the acute general hospital, such as St. Joseph's is an ideal place to carry on this clinical type of research ... (which) yields results that are available to patients even before publication of the data in scientific journals," said Sister Mary Celesta.

"We have been so impressed with the advances that research has given to patient care we feel it incumbent upon us to offer these larger benefits to the people of Victoria," the Sister Superior added.

The foundation was established, she said, "in order to broaden the scope of these research efforts and to ensure their financial underwriting."

It will be supported in its charitable activities by federal research grants and donations and bequests from public-spirited citizens.

Hospital officials said a bequest of "sizeable proportion" is expected to be allocated to the foundation.

Clinical research, or research relating directly to patients, will be first, with basic science research to follow.

Papers of incorporation of the society, filed with the registrar of companies at the Victoria Law Courts building, list these aims:

● To carry on research in medical and cognate sciences and to make the results available to the public.

● To promote and stimulate clinical research in the city of Victoria in the province.

● To collaborate with other societies and such associations, corporations, hospitals and persons as carry on like research.

Six persons are the first directors of the foundation, to be officers for one year from the date of incorporation. They are:

Documents of registration also provide that three members of the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons who are leaders of active research teams, or individual researchers, be elected to act as a medical advisory committee.

They are to control research and decide research projects.

However, the board of directors has the power to appoint the research co-ordinator and set his salary and he is to take charge of the societies' research work.

Fight Victim Improves In Hospital

Condition of a man seriously injured Wednesday night in a Nanaimo street fight was listed as good, a spokesman for St. Joseph's Hospital said last night.

Joseph Mazza, 53, of 35 Lerch Street, in Nanaimo, was admitted to Nanaimo hospital about 9:30 p.m. Wednesday and transferred to Victoria that day. Nanaimo RCMP are investigating the incident.

Lesage Demands Action

'Last Chance' For Canada To Keep Quebec

Mourned

Beliefs of all political hues last night mourned death of labor party leader Hugh Gault, 56, from mystery virus. Deputy leader George Brown, 48, takes over until successor is named formally. See story on Page 3.—(AP Photofax)

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—Premier Lesage says Canada has reached its "hour of last chance" to keep the French-speaking province of Quebec within Confederation.

Lesage, in a speech to the legislative assembly, called for a royal commission of inquiry into the whole problem of bilingualism in Canada and said that the British North America Act would have to be "rethought and rebuilt."

WOULD SURVIVE

The premier, in his first major address on the "two Canadas" debate which has been raging for months, expressed confidence that Confederation would survive provided the royal commission brought home to the rest of the nation Quebec's "legitimate rights and legitimate aspirations."

NOT MUCH SUPPORT

"As the leader of the opposition (Daniel Johnson) pointed out, we are on the eve of celebrating the centenary of Confederation," Lesage said. "We are to judge Confederation as it is practiced today in Canada, there will perhaps be not too much enthusiasm in Quebec, unless there is a change of direction."

Strange, Savage War

A dramatic series of stories on "the forgotten war" being fought against communism in Southeast Asia begins unfolding in The Daily Colonist Sunday morning. Moving correspondence from Peter Worthington of The Telegram News Service tells about the strange, savage war in South Vietnam against a deadly enemy who kills by stealth and surprise and then melts into the jungles and paddies.

Envoy Recalled

Tunisia Algeria At Odds

TUNIS (AP)—President Habib Bourguiba Friday called back his ambassador from Algeria and buried himself in Algerian Premier Ahmed Ben Bella.

In what appeared to be the start of a new crisis in turbulent North Africa, the Tunisian leader charged Algeria with helping to foment a recent plot against his life.

NO BREAK

Thus far, no breakdown of diplomatic relations has been announced but negotiations in Algiers on the traffic of persons and goods across the frontier were halted.

In Tunis, Bourguiba implied in a public speech that Ben Bella was involved in anti-Tunisian activity, adding "but Ben Bella should not be confused with the rest of Algerians who are our brothers."

Law Due Soon Grants Pledged

By IAN STREET

Legislation to give Victoria College full university status will be introduced at the next session of the B.C. House which opens Thursday, Premier Bennett indicated yesterday.

The premier told guests attending the formal opening of the first new building on the Gordon Head campus it was time the province had two universities, "each with a personality of its own."

He stressed, however, the need for continued co-operation between UBC and the fledgling Victoria University, adding "competition should exist in seeking higher standards, not between faculties."

'Surprise' Grants

Premier Bennett also disclosed that for the first time Victoria University this year will receive a capital grant in addition to the annual matching grant of $500,000. He did not say how much.

The premier's announcement came as a surprise, particularly in view of the imminent opening of next week's Throne Speech.

He informed reporters after the ceremonies it was hoped "with co-operation" of every one concerned to introduce and pass necessary legislation at the coming session.

Next step will probably take the form of a round-table conference between authorities at UBC and local university officials to iron out details of the changes required in both acts.

Premier Bennett said in his address: "I hope that, when Victoria University is established by all the necessary acts of the legislature, Judge J. B. Clearihue will become the first chancellor."

Clearihue Hopes

Judge Clearihue, chairman of Victoria College Council for 17 years and leader of the fight for an independent degree-granting university, earlier accepted a silver key to the classroom block that bears his name.

"It is my only hope that this building very soon will become part of the University of Victoria," he said.

As the audience applauded the end of the premier's speech the judge, who had fought for the college's autonomy for so long, could no longer hide his emotions. He took out a handkerchief and wiped his moist eyes.

"The rapid climb from small liberal arts college to full university status in the same field was recounted by principal Dr. W. H. Hickman. Only three years ago Mr. Bennett challenged the community to raise

10-Day Reprieve Won for Britain

BRUSSELS (Reuters)—Diplomatic efforts to save negotiations on British membership in the European Common Market Friday won a 10-day breathing space.

After a day during which France's demand for an immediate suspension of the talks was opposed by its five market partners, a ministerial session of the Six decided to take up the issue again Jan. 28.

It was expected—but not decided—that the British would meet again with the Six immediately after that.

REAL PRESURE

The day also produced the first outward signs of real pressure by West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg to back up their desire for full British membership and get Paris to reverse its "thumbs down" policy on this.

West German sources said Dutch Foreign Minister Joseph Luns told the French that, if negotiations with Britain were broken off, he could not guarantee that the Dutch Parliament would ratify the agreement associating France's former territory of Algeria with the market.

WANT BRITAIN

The sources added that the same held true for West Germany.

British chief negotiator Edward Heath said before leaving for London that the five-day session just ended had shown how strongly the Five wanted Britain to join the Market.

John D Rejects Idea of Break

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker yesterday flatly rejected suggestions that Quebec might break away from Canada unless immediate action is taken to meet current French-Canadian grievances.

At the same time he pledged an all-out effort by his Conservative government to strengthen the nation's "heart strings" through federal-provincial co-operation.

NOT DISINTEGRATING

"The idea that Canada is about to disintegrate has no place in my thinking or my associates' in the cabinet today," he said. "I'm not a defeatist; I don't preach the doctrine that our races can't get together."

"I say there cannot be domination by nine provinces over one—there can only be equal rights for all within the constitution."

The prime minister made his major statement on national unity before some 2,000 cheering supporters at the Conservative Party's annual meeting, less than 24 hours after Quebec Premier Lesage and provincial opposition leader Daniel Johnson had agreed that "the hour of last chance" was approaching as far as keeping Quebec in confederation was concerned.

Mr. Diefenbaker said his government during the past six years had taken several steps to strengthen national unity, including installation of simultaneous translation in the House of Commons, passage of a Canadian Bill of Rights and a consistent, if yet unsuccessful, effort to "repatriate" the Canadian constitution.

The next move, he said, was a federal-provincial conference to reconsider the constitutional issue as well as creation of an official Canadian flag and national anthem.

"You can't do these things by law or compulsion," Diefenbaker said. "They can only be done through co-operation and that is what we intend to do."

Diefenbaker rejected suggestions that a royal commission should be appointed to consider the broad field of national unity and bilingualism.

Young-Tory Majority Calls for A-Weapons

OTTAWA (UPI)—A resolution approving nuclear warheads for Canadian forces at home and overseas was passed Friday by the Young Progressive Conservative Association of Canada.

The vote was 36 to 23 and came at the end of an exhaustive three-hour debate punctuated with flashes of anger and, in one case, near-tears. Anti-nuclear delegates from Ontario tried desperately to win approval for repeated amendments which would have watered down the resolution's unqualified approval of nuclear capabilities for all Canadian forces.

From the start, the debate shaped up as a near-even fight between Alberta, in favor of nuclear arms, and Ontario, against them.

'Pro' on Pledges 'Anti' on Weapons

WINNPEG (UPI)—Liberal leader Lester Pearson—in a telephone interview with a Winnipeg newspaper yesterday—said his party did not really want Canada to acquire nuclear weapons.

Mr. Pearson said that because the government had committed Canada to a nuclear role in NATO and NORAD, a Liberal government would honor these commitments. However, he said that after honoring such commitments, a Liberal government would seek to change them.

Mr. Pearson said the Liberal party did not want Canada to join the nuclear club and, if elected, would attempt to negotiate this country's commitments so that nuclear weapons would not be used by Canadians.

Space Bugs May 'Kill' Earth

Deadly Round Trip?

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A scientist warned yesterday that it is conceivable that microscopic life forms from another planet could cling to returning spacecraft and destroy life on Earth.

Dr. Solomon Golomb of California Institute of Technology said a life form inadvertently imported to Earth might have the capability of successfully competing with Earth forms for the basic raw materials of life.

"There's been a great deal of thought given to preventing contamination of the moon and planets during visits by Earth space vehicles, but an even greater problem entirely overlooked is what about microscopic organisms carried to the Earth on return flights."

Golomb, who spoke at the closing day session of the ninth annual American Astronautical Society, said there is little reason to believe that alien life forms would be more efficient than Earth forms in the struggle for survival, but that it is a potential danger that must be recognized.

Dr. Fred Whipple, vice-president of the society and director of Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, voiced a grim possibility that a meteoroid colliding with Earth could trigger a nuclear war.

"There is no way I know of tracking a meteor," he said. "There is no advance notice of one crashing to earth. No one knows when the next one will hit."

"We can only hope that when it happens again someone will not push the panic button and launch a nuclear war."

"Twice in this century objects big enough to look like nuclear bombs hit this planet—in 1948 in Siberia and in 1957 near Vladivostok both in the Soviet Union."

Ferries Lost

Seas Take 200

HONG KONG (AP)—More than 200 people drowned in two Asian ferry disasters Friday.

The tourist ferry Djandji Radja (King's Promise) burst into flames and sank in North Sumatra's Toba Lake, killing from 105 to 125 persons, mostly women and children. The fire broke out in the engine room and touched off a fuel tank.

Earlier, the 34-ton coastal ferry Yunho capsized in a gale off Korea's southwest coast. Of the 100 people aboard, only a 24-year-old male passenger survived.

No Soft Line

Communist Chinese delegate Wu Hsiuchuan yesterday rejected Soviet Premier Khrushchev's "soft-line" Communism plea in Berlin and issued a declaration of independence within the Communist world. Peking Radio later broadcast his speech in Japanese and English.

U.K. in Market —After de Gaulle

PARIS (Reuters)—President de Gaulle has told a group of French parliamentarians Britain will join the Common Market eventually—but that by that time he probably will no longer be in power, Le Monde says.

The newspaper quotes de Gaulle as saying: "Either the English will sign or they will leave Brussels. Then they will think it over. They will enter the Common Market one day but no doubt I will no longer be there."
